Lewis Debates Next Mine Strike Move

PRESIDENTIAL WARNING BACKS BOARD RULING

Roosevelt Hits 'Individualistic' Interests After 9-2 Vote Against Closed Shop.

UNION HEADS SUMMONED

They'll Meet Friday To Decide on Next Step as Result of Mediator's Decision.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — On the heels of an oblique warning from President Roosevelt that "individualistic" interests which interfere with steel production must be set aside, John L. Lewis today called a meeting of the United Mine Workers' policy committee for Friday to decide if another walkout will be ordered in the company-owned coal mines of the major steel corporations.

Lewis' move coincided with a second step by Mr. Roosevelt—a conference at the White House with a Lewis lieutenant, Thomas Kennedy, secretary of the United Mine Workers Union.

Associates of Lewis said he had sent telegrams to the various district presidents composing the policy committee, a move that must be taken before a strike can be called.

Mr. Roosevelt's warning to Lewis was contained in a message to a Washington conference of steel executives and government officials. It did not, however, mention Lewis by name.

It came after the national mediation board last night had turned down Lewis' demand for a union shop in steel company coal mines by a surprising 9 to 2 vote.

After a week of deliberation the board recommended that the steel companies involved in the dispute sign the regular Appalachian agreement that is in force in other mines but without a union shop clause.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement, read to a meeting of steel industry leaders and government officials in Washington by OPM Director William S. Knudsen, said that the

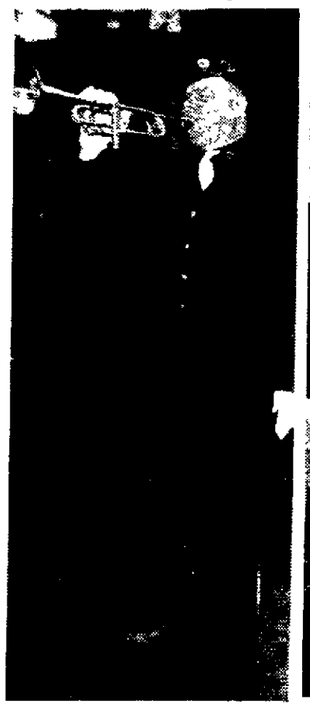
As City Opened Armistice Day Observance



Under cold, gray skies, Mansfield American Legionnaires and auxiliary members grouped around the Doughboy monument in Central park at 10:45 a. m. today to observe the 23rd anniversary of the signing of the armistice. The photo at the left shows Legion color bearers and members of the rifle guard facing the monument. They are, left to right, Ben Emmer, Carl Uhlich, Thane Shaw, and William Carr. Legionnaire Virgil C. Hageman, center, sounded taps for the boys who lost their lives in the war. At the right, Mrs. Martha Gardner, chaplain of the Legion auxiliary, places a wreath at the foot of the monument at the east side of the park. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, Legion chaplain and pastor of First Lutheran church, was the speaker. A parade through the downtown district and brief ceremonies at Central park at 7:30 p. m. today will conclude the Armistice program.

WEIGHS FDR'S REQUEST FOR NEW TAX BILL

House Committee Expected To Defer Action on an Anti-Inflation Act.

SEE TWO-WEEK DELAY

Members Appear Disposed To Wait Until Action Taken on Pending Legislation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The house ways and means committee today weighed a request from President Roosevelt for immediate action on a big anti-inflation tax program, but members seemed disposed to defer the problem until after the house acts on pending price control legislation.

In private expressions of opinion, committeemen said the price control measure was anti-inflationary and the regulations it finally contains would help to decide what further precautions against inflation should go into a new tax bill.

If the committee formally adopts that attitude, a delay of two weeks on the president's appeal seemed likely.

President Roosevelt appealed for speedy consideration of a tax program in a letter to Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the committee, which decides on all new revenue measures. The committee last week postponed consideration of the treasury's proposed new $4,850,000,000 tax program, but Mr. Roosevelt did not refer specifically to this set of recommendations.

The president's letter and Doughton's reply were made public by the White House last night.

"It seems clear," Mr. Roosevelt wrote, "that if we are to prevent a further sharp increase in the cost of living and in the cost of the defense program itself, we must take immediate steps to absorb a large amount of purchasing power through additional taxes, and incidentally, to pay cash for greater part of our defense production."

It should be remembered, he continued, that "taxation is a necessary complement of price control legislation because the London Asserts 3,000 Germans Blown To Pieces By Nazi Torpedo Boats Hunting Sub Which Sank Two Transports Near Norway.

BERLIN — (AP) — German forces, advancing in Karelia and east of Leningrad, are cutting off the Arctic as a route of Russian supply from America and Britain, military spokesmen said today.

(By Associated Press)

Official Soviet dispatches reported today that large German forces had been trapped near Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, and that Nazi prisoners captured in the 40-day-old battle on the central front now appeared exhausted.

In a side phase of the bloody Russo-German struggle, the Norwegian telegraph agency reported from London that hundreds of German soldiers were blown to pieces when Nazi torpedo boats, hunting down a submarine which had sunk two German transports off the coast of Norway, dropped depth charges among troops in the water.

The agency said fewer than 200 of 3,000 Germans aboard the torpedo liners were rescued by a Norwegian ship which reached the scene shortly after the torpedo attack.

"German torpedo boats which were convoying the transport ships dashed full speed among the drowning soldiers, dropping depth charges on the attacking submarine. . . . Hundreds of German soldiers were literally blown to pieces," the agency said.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Winston Churchill shied at new demands raised in the house of commons for the RAF to bomb Rome.

"Do you really think it is wise to provide a hideout for that rat Mussolini?" asked Commander Sir Archibald Southby.

But Churchill declined to go beyond his previous statement that the RAF would bomb Rome "if the course of the war should render such an action convenient and helpful."

In the Crimea, a bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters said German and Rumanian troops were continuing to advance against the great Black sea base of Sevastopol and the port of Kerch, gateway to the Caucasus.

Details of the new gains were not given. Previous reports had placed the Germans about 20 miles from Sevastopol and slightly farther away from Kerch, with Asks C. of C. For Industrial Reports In Program For Issuing Contracts.

Requests for information about Mansfield's industrial facilities with the view of diverting Army contracts to Mansfield to relieve industries affected by government priority restrictions were received today from Army procurement centers.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce, announced that commandants of three stations where government orders for defense articles are originated had contacted him to obtain an index of the city's potentialities.

Routzon said that officers from the posts had written him as a direct result of action taken by the labor division of the Office of Production Management which has placed Mansfield in a "certified" class for defense contract distribution.

Letters were received from the Purchasing and Contracting division of the Engineer Replacement Training Center at Fort Leonard

GETS ANNUITIES FROM CANADA

Petain Receives $2,400 Annually From Insurance Company.

LONDON—(INS)—French Chief Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, a proponent of collaboration with Nazi Germany, is still receiving annuities from a Canadian insurance company, it was disclosed in the house of commons today.

Questioned by Laborite Samuel Silverman, Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, admitted that Britain is permitting transfer of sterling in connection with a 600 pound ($2,400) annuity taken out by Petain in 1927.

Wood justified the transfer on the grounds that Petain is head of a state with which Canada still maintains diplomatic relations.

FDR Says U. S. Has Task of Bringing World Freedom

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt said today that America owed a duty to its dead of the first World war to make in 1941 "the world a place where freedom can live and grow into the ages."

The chief executive spoke at Armistice day exercises in the amphitheater near the Unknown Soldier's Tomb in Arlington National cemetery.

Mr. Roosevelt stressed the fact that the victims of the first World war died not in vain, but to make the world "safe for decency and self respect."

"And if, by some fault of ours who lived beyond the war, its safety has again been threatened then the obligation and duty are ours," the president said.

"This duty we owe, not to ourselves alone, but to the many dead who died to gain our freedom for us—to make the world a place where freedom can live and grow into the ages."

Mr. Roosevelt said this country had the same charge that it had after the Civil war, "To see to it

Park Services, Parade Highlight City's Program

In contrast to the gay celebration that followed the signing of the Armistice ending the first World war 23 years ago, Mansfield today paid solemn tribute to the soldiers who died in that war with brief ceremonies at the Doughboy monument in Central park, while the McVey post, American Legion, planned to conclude the day's program with a dinner and parade tonight.

A small audience stood in freezing weather at 10:45 a. m. today as Mrs. Martha Gardner, chaplain of the American Legion

Father Says Missing Girl Probably With Friend.

Martin Wynn, Mansfield R. D. 5, who reported to Mansfield police that his daughter, Nina, 20, had disappeared Saturday morning while on the way to work, told them today that he believed she had left with a "boy friend."

Wynn said that the family had asked the girl to stop going out with the youth on several occasions. Yesterday, Wynn found that the girl had removed her savings from a hiding place in her room and told police he believed she had left for Detroit or Arizona to join the youth.

The youth had been suffering from bad health and intended to go to Arizona. Wynn said he believed his daughter left to meet him.

He reported his daughter missing after she had failed to report for work Saturday at the North American Knitting mill.

START INQUIRY IN TRAIN WRECK

3-Way Investigation Opened In Crash Fatal To 2 From Mansfield, 10 Others.

State, federal and Pennsylvania railroad officials today probed into wreckage of the railroad's crack Chicago-to-New York flyer, the "Pennsylvanian," in preparation for an official inquiry tomorrow in Ft. Wayne to determine the cause of the accident in which 12 persons—two of them Mansfielders—lost their lives near Dunkirk Sunday night.

As trains resumed their normal schedules today after wrecking crews had cleared the tracks last evening, twisted cars were still piled in a ditch along the right-of-way where they were left by workmen who used huge cranes to remove the wreckage in preparation to the laying of more than 200 feet of new track.

At least 40 persons, some of them still reported in critical condition, were hurt in the crash and today neighboring hospitals were still crammed with the suffering.

Of the 12 dead, three were from the Mansfield area. Bodies of two of these, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Avington, 110 Blymyer avenue, Mansfield, were taken to Akron for funeral services and burial tomorrow. They had been visiting

800 Present At First Session Of Food Institute

More than 800 Mansfield area housewives attended the opening session of the Gasco Food Institute at the Ohio theater this morning.

Sponsored by the Ohio Fuel Gas company, The News-Journal and Mansfield merchants, the institute was conducted by Elizabeth Shipman of Columbus, Gasco food lecturer. She was assisted by Pauline Scofield of the Mansfield office of the Gas company.

During the course of the show, housewives will be instructed in what foods are best to protect family health, the proper preparation of the foods and how to economize on foods in the face of rising costs.

Held daily through Thursday the shows are free of charge and open to all housewives.

Tomorrow's meeting will be addressed by Florence Plondke, special lecturer from the national livestock and feed board.

The institute is the sixth of its kind held annually in Mansfield and begins at 9:15 a. m. with the theater doors opening at 8:30 a. m.

Londoner Kills 1, Injures 8 With Sub-Machine Gun.

LONDON—(U.P.)—A middle-aged brown-haired man, armed with a sub-machine gun, went berserk in west London today, killing one man and injuring at least eight others, including five women.

The man, an apparent homicidal maniac, opened fire at random from his automobile at persons passing along the side walks.

Police mobilized the largest force of the war for a man-hunt, sending reserves into the terrorized area.

Women who had been shopping peacefully for bargains on quiet side streets gave police their description of the killer. Some reports said he was armed with a shotgun in addition to the submachinegun.

BOSTON—(INS)—Charged with the fatal shooting of 15-year-old Stella Krupinski, his pretty high school sweetheart, George Blodgit, 21, a plumber, was to be arraigned today in municipal court.

Boldgit, according to the police, confessed that he shot her in his room yesterday as the climax to a quarrel over her dating another fellow.

He previously had insisted for eight hours that the shooting was accidental, police said.

SUN TO SHINE

Weatherman Predicts Normal Temperatures Tomorrow.

Mansfielders will get a glimpse of the sun again tomorrow and temperatures will go back to normal, the weatherman promised today.

The city today had its fifth consecutive day of snow flurries and freezing weather. The mercury remained at 30 degrees, two below freezing, throughout the morning as gray skies hid the sun.

Highest reading recorded yesterday was 34 degrees and the 24-hour average was 32, exactly freezing. Normal reading for this time of the year is 41 degrees.

Skies will be partly cloudy and the cold will remain tonight, but Wednesday will be fair and warmer, the forecast said. Despite the low temperature, snow continued to melt today as it fell. Only thin blotches of white remained on shaded roofs and lawns.

CHICAGO — (INS) — The state's attorney's office announced today it would seek a murder indictment against George H. Hall, jr., 23, for the fatal beating of his two and a half year old stepson, James Junes.

Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin quoted Hall as confessing he beat the child Saturday night "because he cried and interferred with my dinner." Hall said he "couldn't remember" how many times he hit the boy, Sherwin added.

DIES IN CRASH

Leesville Man, 68, Killed In Accident Near Crestline.

CRESTLINE — Charles Daniel Beegle, 68, of Leesville, was killed instantly last night when the car in which he was riding left the road, turned over, and rolled down an embankment, two miles west of Crestline on the Leesville road.

Carl Walters, Crestline, driver of the car, was taken to Emergency hospital, where he was treated for lacerations and bruises about the head. His condition was reported as fair by hospital attendants.

Beegle was born in Hartford, Mich., Sept. 20, 1873. He is survived by one son, Charles, whose whereabouts are unknown; and one stepson, Alonzo McDonald of Columbus.

Also surviving are four brothers, John of Leesville, Carl and Harl of Seattle, Wash., and Earl of Kalamazoo, Mich.

The body was removed to the Beck Funeral home.

1,300 Praise Tuminia, First Artist In Civic Music Series

By KEN WOODMAN

The Mansfield Civic Music association opened its current concert season last night at Senior high school auditorium with Josephine Tuminia, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, singing before a capacity crowd of some 1,300 association members.

Miss Tuminia came on stage and poured the immediately-melted hearts of all her auditors into her pocket.

She did that before she sang a note. She did it with a completely charming stage presence.

Then she sang—not the Haendel aria as programmed but "Se tu m'ami" by A. B. Bergolese. She sang four more numbers: "Pastoral," Carey; "Tarantella," Rossini; "Mondnacht," Schumann, and "Staendchen," Strauss.

In each of them her diction was perfect, her rhythm flawless.

But then Miss Tuminia sang the buoyant "Les Filles de Cadiz" of Leo Delibes and it became partially apparent why she has been called "the most sensational coloratura of the Metropolitan." In this number she had a spark of the fire that refines a technician into an artist, that lifts listeners out of themselves and makes them say, "This is something!"

There was another number and during the intermission that fol-

Sportsmen, Farmers To Talk Over Hunting Problems Here

Richland county sportsmen and farmers will meet together at 8 p. m. Thursday in the municipal courtroom at the City building to talk over their common problems and discuss the fishing and hunting regulations for next year.

The conference, called by J. A. Swisher, chairman of the Richland Conservation committee, is one of a series sponsored by the Ohio Division of Conservation to give sportsmen and land owners a chance to help make the fish and game laws and to bring about a better understanding between the two groups.

Emphasis will be placed on the proposed fishing regulations for next year, Swisher said. Each person attending the meeting will receive a questionnaire to be filled out and returned to C. I. Kimmel, Richland county game protector. Information contained in the questionnaires will be used by the state division of conservation in mapping the 1942 fish and game program.

One sportsman and one farmer representative from Richland county will attend a district meeting later this month and the 14 Ohio district representatives will meet Dec. 9 in Columbus with the conservation commission to plan game regulations for next year.

Conservation officials said the sportsmen-farmer meetings are helping to eliminate the ill-feeling between the two groups that has closed thousands of acres of farm land to hunters in the state.

The session Thursday night at the City building will be open to anyone who is interested in conservation of wildlife, hunting, and game laws.

REDS REPORT NAZIS TRAPPED AT VOLOKOAMSK

Assert Large German Force Encircled 65 Miles From Moscow.

the Russians fiercely defending both points.

Beside the big German contingent reported trapped near Volokoiamsk — victims of the same encirclement tactics exploited against Red army troops —the Russians said a major Soviet counter-attack had been launched in the Serpukhov sector, 65 miles south of Moscow, against German panzer units attempting to break the central defense arc.

Reuters, the British news agency, declared German forces trying to cross the River Oka there had been annihilated.

Violent all-night fighting was also reported in the Tula sector, 100 miles south of the U. S. S. R. capital, with Soviet troops holding their ground against repeated Nazi tank assaults in the southern suburbs of the town.

"A large group of prisoners captured in the last few days on the western (Moscow) front gave evidence during questioning of a further moral and physical deterioration of German troops," a Soviet communique said.

"All prisoners looked exhausted."

In the north, defenders of siege-girt Leningrad were reported holding fast against 60,000 fresh German shock troops striking from Karelian territory won by their Finnish allies.

Hitler's high command, however, asserted that German and Finnish troops had destroyed large parts of a Soviet division, captured 700 pillboxes and taken 1,200 prisoners in northern Karelia.

The Nazi high command yesterday reported the capture of Tikhvin, 110 miles southeast of Leningrad, in a drive north from the Novgorod sector to join forces with the Finns and thereby completely isolate Leningrad by blocking off the last open route to the eastward.

In aerial warfare, the Fascist high command said British planes again attacked the cities of Naples and Brindisi during the night, and that victims of last week's RAF raid on Brindisi, at the heel of Italy's boot, had risen from 38 to 96 killed and the wounded to 200.

The British admiralty announced that three Italian destroyers were sunk, instead of one previously claimed, and two badly damaged in the battle against an Italian Mediterranean convoy Sunday, in which the Fascists acknowledged a loss of seven merchant ships and two destroyers.

On the Russo-German war front, heavy fighting continued despite the bitterly cold weather.

Russians Press Counter-Attacks

KUIBYSHEV, U.S.S.R. —(INS)— Red army defenders of Moscow intensified their counter-attacks against German positions today while far to the south the Crimean pehinsula was reported thundering to bitter combat.

The Russian counter-drives on the Moscow defense arc were unleashed to break up Nazi preparations for an anticipated new onslaught on the capital with heavily reinforced German troops.

A new high command war communique said fighting continued throughout the night on all fronts.

Meanwhile, dispatch from Moscow said nine enemy bombers raided the capital yesterday. Several planes penetrated the city's defenses and bombed dwelling houses, causing a number of casualties, it was admitted.

A supplementary Russian war bulletin stated that in two days of fighting Soviet airmen on the Leningrad front destroyed 50 enemy planes.

Two Soviet tanks were declared to have penetrated the enemy lines outside Leningrad, annihilating an infantry company.

Simultaneously in the Donetz basin to the south and the Leningrad area to the north, Russian forces aided by artillery and air units were reported enlarging their counter-attacks. Russian reports claimed that in some sectors the enemy was being rolled back over the snow-covered terrain.

Launch New Offensive Against Russians

LONDON —(U.P.)— Big German forces, taking advantage of a week of dry weather, were reported today to have launched a new offensive in the Donets basin, but Russian reports claimed that the Red army was holding firm and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

The Germans were reported to have attacked with large formations of trucks, armored cars, motorized infantry and artillery, but it was claimed "not a single one of these drives yielded any palpable result."

If A Soviet Bomber Should Find This!

What an explosion there would be if a Russian bomber should happen to drop an "egg" on this German ammunition dump somewhere behind the lines on the eastern front! Soldiers are stacking a row of giant aerial bombs.

Charges U. S. Subs In Mediterranean

ROME —(U.P.)— Virginio Gayda wrote in the newspaper Giornale D'Italia today that the United States had "increased" the numbers of its submarines in the Mediterranean as well as the number of destroyers on patrol duty in the Atlantic.

Gayda said also that United States reconnaissance planes were being used in increasing numbers to aid British convoys which, he said also were being aided by American destroyers.

Brand Peace Move 'Outright Lie'

BERLIN—(INS)—British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's declaration that a German "peace offensive" is imminent was branded an "outright lie" by a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman today.

Commenting on the address delivered in London by Churchill yesterday, the spokesman declared:

"There will be no German peace feelers in this war, just as none exist now.

"This war will be conducted by us relentlessly until victory is won.

"The only question is whether England will be destroyed or whether she will ask for peace."

Report Germans Bomb Red Capital

BERLIN —(INS)— German planes bombed "war-important targets" in Moscow during the night, causing a number of explosions, the high command announced today.

The war bulletin also stated German and Finnis htroops operating on the northern Karelian sector of the front have captured 700 Soviet bombers.

NEW A. E. F.?

Vorys Charges U. S. Prepares To Send Troops To Africa.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The United States today is making preparations to send an American Expeditionary force to Africa, it was charged by Congressman John M. Vorys, Columbus Republican and member of the house foreign affairs committee.

Addressing a town meeting here, Vorys said:

"We already have an A. E. F. in Iceland, a few hundred miles from Europe. We have a mission now on its way to the Near East to prepare bases, fields and camps for an African A. E. F. Nearly every army officer you talk to thinks we are soon to have an A. E. F. in Africa. . . .

"When ever the ship bill, now back in the house, becomes a law, an A. E. F. of 600,000 men can be sent anywhere by the president without further authorization by congress."

1,300 Praise Tuminia, First Artist In Civic Music Series

lowed listeners praised it as the finest of the first half of the concert.

They said: "In that 'Theme and Variations' of Saint Saens she was really grand."

"But it wasn't the "Theme and Variations." The program said that. Only, Miss Tuminia sang Eckert's "Swiss Echo Song." And she sang it beautifully.

However, she didn't really show inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

The Germans were reported to have attacked with large formations of trucks, armored cars, motorized infantry and artillery, but it was claimed "not a single one of these drives yielded any palpable result."

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE TONIGHT

auxiliary, placed a wreath at the feet of the Doughboy at the east side of Central park.

"Sorry as we are and as much as we regret the sacrifices made during the first World war, we are prepared again to make sacrifices, if necessary, to protect the things that are holy to America," Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, chaplain of McVey post, said in a brief talk at the monument.

Rev. Swoyer, only speaker at the ceremonies which lasted only a few minutes, offered prayer. The Legion rifle guard fired three volleys and Virgil C. Hageman sounded taps.

Preceding the ceremonies at the park, the Legion color and rifle guards and members of the post and auxiliary marched east on Park avenue from the Legion home to the park.

Legionnaires, auxiliary members, Spanish American war veterans, and other patriotic organizations will join in a parade through the city's business district at 7:30 p. m. It will start at the Legion home on Park avenue west and proceed east to Central park.

When the parade reaches Central park it will pause for a retreat ceremony by Richland county members of the Ohio State Guard at the west side of the park. From there the parade will go north on Main street to Fourth, west on Fourth to Mulberry, and south on Mulberry to Park avenue west. R. B. Gardner, past department commander of the American Legion, will be grand marshal of the parade.

A dinner for post members, Gold Star mothers, and Spanish War veterans will be held at 6 p. m. at the American Legion home.

City and county schools halted classes for a short period at 11 a. m. today to present special programs in observance of Armistice day. Pupils in the Springfield township schools observed two minutes of silence at 11 a. m. and saw the patriotic movie, "Sons of Liberty." Taps were sounded by the school bugler.

Banks, city, county and state officers and the state liquor stores in Mansfield were closed all day today. Flags were displayed in the downtown section.

arias "Una voce poco fa" from the Barber of Seville by Rossini and "Je suis Titania" from Mignon by Thomas.

In fact, these were the highlights of the program and you can rank with them her rendition of Strauss' "Tales From the Vienna Woods."

Verve, sparkle, and technical understanding shone through these numbers.

There's no doubt that Josephine Tuminia has a great deal more than her Mansfield audience got last night. She showed musical humor—an elusive and difficult quality—in "The Janitor's Boy" by Jacques Wolfe. She showed musical acumen in the Watts and North songs. But she rose to the heights that her listeners had reason to expect of her only two or three times.

Miss Tuminia had been ill. But she told this writer she had sung three concerts, at Jamestown, N. Y., Youngstown, and Springfield, since illness forced her to postpone her engagement here last month. She was very sorry about the postponement and she "loved her audience" here last night.

Well, her audience "loved" her. There's no doubt about that. She put the highly successful Civic Music association concert series of recent years off to another auspicious start. But she did it by the sheer force of her personality and her innate musicianship, not by the lyric lift of her songs.

Mansfielders were pleased with Josephine Tuminia but they wouldn't be pleased by too many concerts like last night's. They expect artists to give them the artistry that has made them more than skilled performers. That's what they're going to expect of Director Hans Kindler and the National Symphony Orchestra, Dec. 1, of Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, Feb. 17, and of Gianini and Martinelli, soprano and tenor, March 24.

Accompaniments to last night's numbers were played capably, and sometimes brilliantly, by Miguel Sandoval, composer of numerous songs and the symphonic poem "Recuerdas en un paseo" which was given its first performance last summer by the New York City symphony orchestra.

After leaving Mansfield, Miss Tuminia expected to return to New York. Next on her concert schedule is an appearance at Englewood, N. J. After that she will be singing principally at the Metropolitan, she said.

Avington's sister, Mrs. H. E. Griffin in Chicago.

Another killed was M. L. Ray, 44, Mt. Gilead. Ray, a rural electrical expansion superintendent, was returning to Mt. Gilead from his home in Milwaukee.

A Mansfield woman injured in the crash, Mrs. William P. Sheets, 355 Marion avenue, suffered head bruises and severe facial lacerations. She is resting comfortably in McKittrick hospital in Kenton today, her brother, Rex Gilbert, 156 Bartley avenue, said this morning.

The body of Mrs. Emma Mae Williams, 67, of Rockford, Ill., was identified at a Findlay mortuary today nearly 24 hours after the wreck. She was reported en route to Baltimore to be married. Her dog, wandering about the crash scene, and a leash in Mrs. Williams' effects helped establish her identity.

With the identification of Mrs. Williams, rail officials said only one body remains unidentified. Clues to the identity of a woman whose body was in an Ada mortuary were still sought.

The accident was believed to have been caused when a half-ton cylinder head was blown from a passing freight locomotive into the path of the speeding luxury train, H. E. Newcomet, railroad vice president said.

"It was as though the engineer had applied the brakes too rapidly," S. M. Davison said last night as he described his sensation of the crash while stopping at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Davison, northwest district sales manager for the Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing company, was on his way to Mansfield to attend a business conference at the time of the accident.

He gave the following account of his experience:

"I boarded the train in Chicago and had moved to club car — about the fifth car from the locomotive, I judge—at the time of the crash.

"First sensation was almost exactly like those I have felt before when an engineer rapidly applied the brakes — sort of a jerky grabbing of the wheels. This eased off for a second and then came on more strongly until suddenly the car smashed to a stop and fell over on its right side.

"The lights fortunately remained lighted, but I was thrown from a booth, where I was playing bridge with some people I had just met.

"After the crash the car seemed to be settling on its side and someone hysterically screamed that we were over water and sinking. This added considerably to the confusion and the passengers threw chairs and other fixtures out of the windows as they fought to get clear.

"As a matter of fact, we were of course on dry land. I was afraid that the train would fall the rest of the way from its tilted position and crush the passengers as they scrambled clear, but fortunately it held its position.

"A man in the car came up to me before I got out with blood spurting from a deep gash in his left wrist. I grabbed his handkerchief and tied his arm with it and that's the last I saw of him.

"After leaving the car I walked to the front of the train and tried to find the locomotive but there was so much debris from the frame signal tower it struck that I could hardly see it.

"From there I watched the State Highway patrol handling the crowds and drove to Kenton with a doctor and from there came on to Mansfield. I'll go home tomorrow—by rail," Davison concluded.

ARMY SEEKING DATA ON CITY

Asks C. of C. For Industrial Reports In Program For Issuing Contracts.

Wood, Mo.; from the U. S. Engineer's office, Jacksonville, Fla.; and from the Engineer's section of the National General department, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Routzon said that the procurement centers asked that directories be forwarded to them so they could obtain a listing of the city's industries and information outlining their production potentialities.

The various procurement centers have been asked to investigate the possibility of placing orders in Mansfield rather than other towns by the War Department.

OPM set up a local labor and industrial committee here last month to work in cooperation with the national group in readjusting local employment. Suggestions have been made that local manufacturers begin training their employes in defense skills so that they can assume defense orders in the near future.

STAGE BLACKOUT

Norwalk to Observe Armistice Day In War Fashion.

NORWALK — (U.P.) — This city will be "blacked out" tonight for five minutes as part of Armistice day observance.

The city fire siren will sound at 6:15 p. m., calling out home guards, war veterans and boy scouts for emergency duty. The blackout will start at 7 p. m. State highway patrolmen will halt incoming traffic at the city limits for the period.

TAFT SAYS FDR SPURNED OFFER

Ohio Senator Claims Proposal Made To President By Nippon Was Rejected.

conversations between Japanese and United States officials on differences between the two nations.

Taft explained it was his "understanding" that Japan had offered to quit China, except for five principal cities where garrisons would be maintained.

However, he said, Japan balked at guaranteeing Vladivostok immunity from future attack, because she feared that Japanese cities might be bombed by aircraft operating from bases in the vicinity of the Soviet port.

As Taft registered pessimism about chances for a speedy settlement with Japan, other opposition stalwarts accused Winston Churchill of seeking to prod the United States into war with the Japanese.

They cited the British prime minister's language in commenting yesterday on the status of U. S.-Japanese relations. Churchill said he did not know if American efforts to preserve peace in the Pacific would succeed. If they fail, he added, and "should the United States become involved in war with Japan, a British declaration will follow within the hour."

Administration supporters dismissed the opposition attacks on Churchill as ill-founded. They contended that Churchill merely had given assurance that Britain would fight on the side of the United States in any Far Eastern conflict.

The Churchill statement, however, served to emphasize the delicate Pacific situation as Saburo Kurusu, the special Japanese envoy, continued his flying journey to Washington. Kurusu was delayed at Midway island by engine trouble yesterday, and now is expected to reach San Francisco Thursday. His talks with state department officials start next week.

British Envoy at Tokyo Foreign Office

TOKYO—(AP)—The British ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, called at the foreign office today on a visit which diplomatic sources said was for discussion of Prime Minister Churchill's blunt statement that Britain would declare war on Japan within an hour if Japan should go to war with the United States.

Sir Robert's call, evidently upon instructions from London, was made apparently as soon as possible after delivery of the Churchill warning, which came last night, Tokyo time.

Koh Ishii, the cabinet's official spokesman, discounted the Churchill declaration as an expected warning, but Domei, news agency with close official connections, said it was extremely significant.

Calls Churchill Statement 'Impudent'

BERLIN —(AP)— Authoritative Germans today characterized Prime Minister Churchill's address yesterday as an impudent attempt to egg on the United States and Japan.

"It is impudence, arrogance and dillettantism of the first order to speak as he did," they said.

Regarding Churchill's reference to German peace feelers, they said "the only question is, will England be annihilated or will it beg for peace?"

Burma, Thailand Sound Warnings

LONDON —(INS)— Rapidly intensifying signs of crisis in the Far East brought new warnings of trouble today from both Burma and Thailand.

The Burmese government issued a warning against a possible Japanese offensive against the Burma road, "life-line" for military supplies flowing to Chungking.

According to a Reuters dispatch from Rangoon, the Burmese statement made it clear Burma would regard such a move of immediate concern, even though it were conducted on Chinese territory.

Earlier the official Bangkok (Thailand) radio broadcast a warning to the Thai people to be prepared to defend their neutrality by force of arms.

FASCIST KILLED

49 Others Hurt When Bombs Are Tossed Among Bandsmen.

ROME—(INS)—One person was killed and 49 were injured yesterday when three bombs were hurled at the musical band of the Italian Cicciatori Alpine regiment at Splato, Yugoslavia, an Italian communique announced today.

"Twenty-four of those wounded were military officals. The others were civilians.

(A Reuters (British) dispatch from Vichy said the bombs were thrown at the band while it was en route to attend a ceremony. According to this account 23 soldiers were killed and one was injured while 25 civilians were wounded.)

CHURCH GROUP PLANS TO HOLD CELEBRATION

Good Hope Congregation at Bucyrus To Mark Founding In 1942.

BUCYRUS—Good Hope Lutheran church will mark its centennial of the founding of the Bucyrus church by dedicating a new $9,000 Kimball organ if plans of the congregational committee, submitted at a meeting of the congregation Sunday, are carried out. The centennial will occur in 1942.

Purchase of the instrument, a three manual organ with detached console finished in Gothic style oak, was recommended by the committee composed of Dr. L. L. Fisher, Mrs. C. E. Gebhardt, Miss Dortha Given, Miss Lillian Heckenhauer, Miss Kathryn Unger and H. G. F. Walther.

Charles Herschler, named chairman of Crawford county's annual Red Cross roll call, today announced his staff of workers who will assist in raising the Crawford county roll call quota of $1,200 between now and Nov. 27 when the drive is scheduled to close.

Representatives of local industries, business places and organizations will head the various divisions who will assist in contacting residents of the county in an attempt to secure a 100 per cent enrollment.

Added demands for Red Cross relief work are partly responsible for a boost in the Crawford county quota from $900 to $1,200, which includes the entire county with the exception of Galion and Crestline, where individual campaigns will be conducted.

Representatives from five Crawford county communities were selected to represent their churches and schools in the county Prince of Peace contest to be held early in December, in programs in their respective communities Sunday night.

Winners will compete with winners from Bucyrus, Galion and Crestline, who will be chosen at elimination programs this week.

Those taking first place in the county contests were Miss Jayne Dudley, winner for the second consecutive year in her community of Tiro; George Neikirk, Mt. Zion; Miss Patricia Zaebst, Chatfield; Miss Gertrude Frank of Sulphur Springs, and Ross Deiler of Baseline Reformed church, Bloomville community. Runners up were Lillian Morehead, Mary Shade, Edith Denzer, Alice Schimpf and Marjorie Stuckey.

ASHLAND VETS PARADE; PLAY TO BE STAGED

Armistice Program Presented With Patriotic Groups Taking Part.

ASHLAND—Armistice Day was observed here today with a morning program at McDowell auditorium sponsored by Ashland patriotic organizations. A parade of members of Harry Higgins Post No. 88 American Legion and of Ashland Post No. 1067, Veterans of Foreign Wars marched from the corner of Center and Main streets to the auditorium for the program.

A two-minute silence period at 11 a. m. honored those who lost their lives in World War 1 following which a pageant "The Melting Pot" was presented by members from the speech and music departments of Ashland High school.

This afternoon at 2 p. m. the state highway department will plant a number of memorial trees on Route 42 along the fairgrounds under sponsorship of Harry Higgins Post. Harry Eaton of the local post, district vice commander, will speak.

Last night the annual Armistice Day banquet of the Legion was held at the Methodist Educational Building. Floyd R. Hartpence of Columbus, commander of the American Legion, Department of Ohio, was the speaker.

PAYMENT BOOSTED

ASHLAND — Ashland county farmers will receive an increase of 2.5 cents a bushel in the 1944 AA wheat conservation payment. Farmers who seeded within their 1942 wheat allotments will earn a payment of 10.5 cents a bushel as compared with 8 cents a bushel in 1941.

According to J. A. Staman, AAA chairman for Ashland county, the wheat payment rate increase is due principally to a substantial decrease in next year's acreage allotment.

Other payments for 1942 based on normal yield of allotted acreages are lower, corn payments for 1942 being 8 cents per bushel as compared to 9 cents for 1941; potatoes 2 cents per bushel as compared to 2.3 cents in 1941, and Burley-Cigar Leaf tobacco 0.7 cents as compared to 0.8 cents in 1941.

650 AIDED

BUCYRUS — A total of 650 cases in the county, representing 1,495 individuals, were aided in the distribution of surplus food commodities in October, R. L. Hertzer, county relief certifying agent, has reported.

Apples were the principal commodity distributed with a total of 23,672 pounds allocated in the county. Other products included white potatoes, white and graham flour, corn meal, wheat cereal, dried beans and prunes.

TALKS TO CLUB ON EXPERIENCES

Galion Librarian Addresses Rotarians on Impressions While In Montreal.

GALION—Impressions of Montreal while she was a student at McGill university were given by Evelyn Long, librarian of the Galion Senior and Junior high schools, when she was speaker Monday night at the Rotary club dinner meeting at Hotel Talbott.

It was like being in a foreign country, she said, because there were so few automobiles, and many bicycles and go-carts in the streets and on the sidewalks. People there are not very friendly, she opined, the policemen being the most congenial. In the maritime provinces, such as New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and the Prince Edward Isles, the people were more friendly. There is much antipathy between the French and Canadians of English extraction she said. Those of English descent are leaders in business, education and the professions, while the French are mostly of the servant class, and are clerks and small politicians.

It was her opinion that the Canadians know the Americans better than we know them; but in their knowledge, the undesirable features of the Americans are the best known. Our magazines, movies and American commodities are available there, while the Canadian movies and magazines are not so widely distributed in the United States.

"USE Savex SOAPLESS SUDSER—GET SPARKLING DISHES WITHOUT TOWELING"

DISCOVER this glorious new way to end soap film and make dishes and glassware brilliant ... without tiresome toweling. See Savex, the Soapless Sudser, demonstrated at the cooking school. Then go to your grocer ... get a package and do these three things:

1 ... sprinkle 2 tablespoons Savex into dishpan before turning water tap. Now add lukewarm water.

2 ... wash glasses, silverware, dishes, pots, and pans—in that order. Savex gets the grease ... dishes sparkle with little rubbing.

3 ... place dishes in drying rack. Rinse with hot water ... let stand for few seconds. They drain dry without streaks ... no trace of soap film. You've licked dreary dish-wiping!

REMEMBER... woolens, hosiery, foundation garments wash beautifully in velvety Savex suds. It's grand, too, for "quick clean-ups" ... windows, mirrors, upholstery, painted surfaces, walls, fixtures and tiling. Savex is kind to your hands.

Armistice Ended, War Resumed

TODAY is no more than the twenty-third anniversary of an armistice by which a beaten Germany secured suspension of hostilities on November 11, 1918—in order to regain sufficient military strength to resume the titanic struggle for European domination and world supremacy.

The glad acclaim with which news of the armistice-signing was received throughout the world is absent today, and it has been realized long before now, that the armistice was premature.

It came before the people of Germany had experienced any of the horrors of the warfare their military leaders had visited upon Belgium and France—it left them doubting that they had actually been defeated, and ready for the advent of Hitler and his Nazi regime, with its preachment of racial superiority and aspiration of world conquest.

This Armistice day cannot be made the happy occasion that it was for a number of years after the event—when there was belief that restoration of peace, the Versailles treaty, disarmament agreements and a well-intentioned but impotent League of Nations would serve to prevent future wars.

An armistice is defined as "a temporary suspension of hostilities, by agreement," and that is exactly what the armistice of November 11, 1918, turned out to be.

Hostilities were "temporarily suspended"—for a period of twenty years, during which time the Allies mistakenly assumed that the war was over and gave no heed to Germany's feverish work of rebuilding a mightier military machine than ever before, with a new generation of young men and boys trained and in readiness to renew aggressive warfare.

Aligned with the Allied forces before the armistice, the United States now sees no other course than to resume its support of the nations now actively in the war, and the whole defense and aid program is based on recognition of the necessity of defeating the Axis powers before there can be a return to orderly government in Europe or assurance of safety from Nazi control in the Western Hemisphere.

On this Armistice day, while a tribute is being paid to the memory of those who sacrificed their lives in the first stage of the World war, and gratitude is being expressed to those who returned after gallantly serving their country, it is also fitting that there be a re-dedication of American faith, determination and energy to the task that lies ahead.

It is by successful completion of this task that the United States can again prove that "a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal" can endure.

More Abuse of Franking Privilege

A FURTHER revelation of abuse of the franking privilege appears in today's installment of the Washington Merry-Go-Round and there is at least a possibility that the extent to which Pearson and Allen have been informing the public on this subject may eventually lead to substantial reduction of abuses to which this free mailing privilege has been subjected.

Previous Merry-Go-Round articles have told of the ways in which some congressmen have co-operated with Nazi propagandists in the distribution of alien-inspired preachments, without payment of postage, and the incident recited today, while presumably honest in purpose, is nevertheless a long departure from the intent of the franking privilege and a brazen waste of taxpayers' money.

While the waste of a few thousand dollars here and there may seem inconsequential at a time when New Deal non-defense extravagances are keyed in terms of billions, it does appear that at least a gesture of economy-intent might be made in such obvious wastefulness as this.

Small wage earners who are being asked to respond patriotically to the government's demand for steadily increasing taxes to meet defense needs are not inclined to view with complacency the waste of millions—or even thousands—of dollars on non-defense extravagances.

Research By a Good Neighbor

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL of the University of Texas has begun a first-hand study of tropical diseases. It has sent an expert to the Dominican republic to co-operate with the Settlement association in matters of health supervision. This also gives the university a base for research in tropical diseases.

Two jobs are tackled first. One is to learn the number and kinds of diseases now present in the area between the American border and the South American tropics. The other is to discover all possible means of transmission. A school of tropical medicine is expected to develop from the work.

Why does Texas assume leadership in this field? For one thing, it is close to the region and would be first hit by a disease invasion from the tropics via the north-south transport lanes. Second, the great numbers of troops training in Texas come from all over the country. Those from the north especially are not naturally fortified to resist the diseases to which they may be exposed. Third. Texas considers this a contribution to Pan-Americanism and the "good neighbor policy."

Commendable Aspiration

A RATHER unusual statement was made by a winning mayoralty candidate after the election. He thanked friends and fellow citizens for support during the campaign and at the polls. Then he added these words:

"We know not what our future lot may be. The present occasion should not be one of rejoicing, but one of solemn dedication by each of us to do, unselfishly, his humble part in preserving our city, our nation and our American way of life. While victory seemingly has come to me today, its full enjoyment will not and cannot be mine unless and until, at the end of my administration, I have shown the people, by my service to them and by my loyalty to the trust they have placed in my hands, that their confidence has not been misplaced."

There is something for all elected officials to think about as they assume new duties or continue in office.

It is again being argued that government bureaus should be co-ordinated—but that sounds just as expensive.

It may also be noted that "freedom of speech" doesn't apply to long distance telephone calls.

THE FULL MEASURE OF DEVOTION

Hope to Cut Non-Defense Budget

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

CONGRESS' special "committee to investigate federal expenditures" has a hard job ahead of it. Its stunt is to determine what reductions can be made. Of course all the cuts it recommends will be in non-defense items. That defense spending will bulge is a foregone conclusion. That's why non-defense costs so urgently need to be drastically pared down in next year's budget, to be submitted to the legislators in January. Otherwise it's foreseen that the taxpayers' backs will break.

Senator Byrd

That there's a tremendous public demand for economy there's no question.

The difficulty is that each group of beneficiaries of their particular taxation item want reductions made at all the other groups' expense, but not at their own. Contrariwise most of 'em want, for their own especial selves, increases.

The committee's problem is to hit on a plan for granting larger individual allowances all around, at the same time trimming down the total. It's headed by Senator Harry Byrd.

Naturally included in the body of a dozen investigators are Chairmen Walter F. George and Robert L. Doughton, respectively of the senate finance and representatives' ways and means committees. A few Republicans are in the bunch, too, among them Representative Allen T. Treadway, who was ways and means chairman when the G. O. P. was in power.

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau and Budget Director Harold D. Smith are on the list also, but they're ex-officio. It's essentially a congressional committee. Morgenthau and Smith are needed, though, as advisers.

The pair last referred to aren't on such a hot spot. As appointed executives, they can advise as they like, and to heck with the voters. The senators and representatives, however, with future election days to think about, are starting in on a dozen bad headaches.

Morgenthau Says Billion.

Secretary Morgenthau already has declared for at least $1,000,000,000 cut. That much is "safe," he says. The budget bureau's submitted a schedule showing how $2,000,000,000 can be saved, though possibly not safely.

What'll the cuts be made in?

Secretary Morgenthau suggested less aid to agriculture, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the National Youth administration and non-defense public works.

The budget bureau likewise hints at a trimming of appropriations for support of the government's numerous civil departments, but there doesn't seem to be much prospect of it. At present they're all expanding.

Now, what'll agriculture say if it's retrenched on?

And how about veterans' pensions and benefits?—which the bureau mentions as an item susceptible to a $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 reduction.

Secretary Morgenthau undoubtedly said a mouthful when he warned that individuals as well as the government are going to be pinched at the rate at which we're traveling in the direction of defense and lease-lending.

"We simply can't carry on business and government as usual," he told the congressional investigators, "and still take adequate care of our defense needs. It would be a tragic error to assume that we can continue to expand our defense production on a colossal scale and go on in our usual way, whether as a government—OR AS INDIVIDUALS."

When March Comes!

It's the widespread consensus among income taxpayers that they'll realize the truth of this when they make out their returns next March. They won't need to be told then that they'd better economize. They'll know that they have GOT to.

Of course, by that time, in spite of Price Fixer Leon Henderson, their living costs will be skyhooting furiously also, as they already have begun doing.

Incidentally, besides Uncle Sam's levies, city, county and state taxes are going on the rampage very rapidly. They always follow the federal government's example.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, Nov. 11, 1921.

Armistice day was observed in Mansfield, under American Legion auspices, with program in Central park at which Hon. Charles H. Workman was the speaker.

Miss Gertrude Freir and Emory L. Myers were married by Rev. F. C. Anderson.

United States proposed scrapping capital ships as move toward world disarmament.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cary Hale, South Foster street.

November birthday party of the Emanon club was held at the Evergreens, followed by theater party at the Opera House.

Albert Ritchie, West Fourth street, sustained broken nose while unloading furniture at local store.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Wednesday, Nov. 11, 1936.

Fire destroyed the home of John W. McFadden, 331 West Fourth street.

Betty Critchfield was struck by an auto while crossing Park avenue west.

Dr. Mabel Emery Huston and Dr. R. C. Wise were named members of the Richland County Welfare board.

Mrs. Mary Bryant, 24, died after an illness of two months.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bradley, 254 South Adams.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Hostilities in the World war, which began late in July 1914, were suspended at 11 o'clock in the morning of Monday, Nov. 11, 1918, when an armistice was signed by the contending powers.

Health and Diet

Steady Use of Sedatives Injurious.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"Is the continued use of bromides injurious in any way? Will stopping its use after taking it three times daily for two years affect the system?"

This is a bona fide inquiry from a reader. It seems strange that it should be bona fide. How could any adult suppose that taking a sedative three times a day for two years would not be injurious? Bromides, of all drugs, tend most prominently to accumulate in the system and produce skin eruptions and other symptoms.

Serious Health Problem.

Bromide intoxication is increasing in the United States and presents a considerable health problem. One of the great dangers comes from just such conditions as are revealed in this letter. A person keeps on taking bromides regularly and it becomes so natural that they fail to ascribe the poor health they suffer to the drug. In fact, they keep on taking more to get rid of the headaches, trembling, nausea, irritability and dizziness that the drug induces. A vicious circle is produced.

The bromide habit is usually started by a physician's prescription. This is most often given for the symptoms of chronic alcoholism or general nervousness. Even if the physician warns that the drug should not be kept up after the prescription runs out, the warning is often forgotten.

Bromide Rash.

Then some day the bromide habitue wonders what the ugly skin eruption on the face is. Acne is an easy explanation, and local treatment is started with external applications. A patient came to me once with great pustular fungating eruptions on the skin of the legs. They had been there months, while she took her daily dose of bromides, not realizing it was a bromide rash.

The skin eruptions are, however, not the only signs of chronic bromide intoxication. One person will suddenly go into a confused metal state bordering on a comatose condition. Another will develop ataxia, or inability to walk steadily. When reaching for objects they will miss them by several feet. Another will be noticed for the slurring speech, and gait with feet wide apart. Plenty such patients are puzzles when admitted to hospitals because they are so dull mentally that they fail to give the one illuminating point in the history, their habit of taking bromides, and the family does not know about it.

Bromides stay in the blood a long time and tend to accumulate and accumulate. Even after the bromide is stopped, it does not all get out of the system for months. Its elimination can be hastened greatly by feeding sodium chloride—common salt. For those patients who need to take bromides over a long period of time, it should be insisted that they take plenty of salt along with it.

U. S. Experts Stream to Africa To Help British With Machines

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—One of the most important but little-heralded moves made by this country recently is the steady stream of mechanics, aviators, technicians which has crossed to Africa to establish equipment and repair bases in Egypt, Persia and the Near East.

On the surface, this young army is to repair American tanks, airplanes, and teach the British how to operate them. This, in itself, is a most important function, since the British seem to have a rare aptitude for gumming up American machinery. In the later part of last summer the defeat of the British, when they advanced on the Italians and Nazis with 200 tanks near Tobruk, was due almost entirely to faulty handling of American tanks. The tanks were brand new, and the British had not taken sufficient pains to get acquainted with them. As a result they lost 200 of these best and latest lease-lend tanks.

Since then there have been no more advances along the Libyan front. Since then, also, General Russell Maxwell has been heading a new American mission in Egypt to train the British in using and repairing U. S. tanks.

Beneath the surface, this army of American technicians also serves another important purpose. Actually they are the advance guard to set up bases, repair shops, docks and everything else necessary for the landing of an American army, should that ever become necessary.

That is the essential significance of the stream of men going to Africa. Some of them are staying on the Atlantic coast, just south of Dakar. And it is no secret that these American-manned bases are to guard against the day when Hitler might want to hop the narrow south Atlantic to Brazil.

New Russian Ambassador.

THE appointment of Maxim Litvinov as new Russian ambassador to the United States recalls the hitherto unpublished story about his negotiations with Roosevelt in 1933.

Litvinov was then foreign minister of Russia, and spent several days in the White House conferring regarding the chief stumbling block — guarantees for religious worship. During the conferences, Broadway comedian Eddie Dowling, old personal friend of the president, came to the White House, and Mrs. Roosevelt told him to go up to the Lincoln study and drop in on the Russian discussions.

Dowling was anxious to persuade Litvinov to send the famous Moscow ballet on a tour of the U. S. A., and Roosevelt knew this in advance. So, introducing Dowling to the Russian foreign minister, the president said:

"This is my old friend Eddie Dowling who may go to Russia. When he does, I am going to give him a letter of introduction to your government."

"We'll be delighted to see him," shot back Litvinov. "But as an actor, Mr. Dowling won't need your letter. We welcome the visit of artists. Now if you are sending us any bankers, then they will need a letter."

Note—Dowling never persuaded the Russian government to send the ballet, and Roosevelt never persuaded Litvinov to give satisfactory assurances regarding religious freedom. Asked by newspapermen as he was coming from the White House what progress he had made regarding religion, Litvinov replied: "I can't discuss it. This is Sunday."

Reynolds' Friend.

SENATOR Robert R. Reynolds, handsome, oft-married North Carolina isolationist, is chairman of the senate military affairs committee. As a sideline he is also head of an organization he calls The Vindicators Association, Inc., and publisher of a weekly with the title, The American Vindicator.

Recently the head of a company that has big army contracts received the following letter from Reynolds on a United States senate letterhead:

"My dear Mr. X: I have requested my associate, Mr. E. M. Forbes, to call on you this week to discuss with you a program of national legislation that deals with a situation which is important insofar as the future of our country is concerned. I want to assure you, my dear Mr. X, that I shall appreciate any courtesy you may extend to Mr. Forbes when he calls at your office, at which time I trust you will see him personally. With assurances of my highest esteem, I am . . ."

Mr. X was not personally acquainted with Reynolds or his associate Forbes. However, Forbes was received when he called. This is the gist of what he said:

That people all over the country were clamoring to have Reynolds fight the battle for them on the "all American front." As a public-minded citizen, Mr. X was requested to give a substantial donation so that Reynolds could expand the distribution of the "American Vindicator."

Forbes did not get a donation. However, he left several copies of Reynolds' paper and a subscription blank which read, "It is understood and agreed that The Vindicators Association, Inc., will furnish names and addresses to which these subscriptions will be sent."

Another Franking Grab.

UNSUSPECTING taxpayers don't know it, but they are being tapped for more than $6,000 this week to frank out a speech by Herbert Hoover urging the shipment of food to Nazi-occupied Europe.

Mr. Hoover's generous franking benefactor—at the taxpayers' expense—is Nebraska's rookie isolationist Senator Hugh A. Butler.

This is the carefully guarded story:

On October 20, Butler inserted Hoover's radio address in the Congressional Record. This opened the way for large quantity reprints by the government printing office—at cost. Sure enough, a few days later Butler ordered 300,000 copies of the speech.

The charge for this big order was $900, which Butler paid in advance. Asked if he or Hoover put up the money, Butler declared that it came out of his own pocket.

According to one government printing office official, the Nebraskan paid the $900 in currency when he put in his order—a very unusual procedure, since members of congress customarily pay their printing bills by check after receipt of bill. But, another government printing official later said Butler paid "either by cash or check."

At any rate the 300,000 reprints are now in process of being mailed out all over the country by the senate folding room, at a cost, estimated by the post office department, of $5,640 to taxpayers. But this isn't the only expense for which they will be soaked.

They will also have to fork over $417 for the franked envelopes, which are furnished Hoover, via Butler, free of charge.

Another interesting angle is that Butler is using a mailing list supplied by Emil Hurja, one-time official of the Democratic national committee who bolted to Willkie in 1940 and now is an active isolationist. This is the same list which Hurja turned over to Senator Wheeler when he mailed out his famous postcard referendum, some of which went to army camps.

Asked about Hoover's franked speech, Hurja stated that he had "rented" a list of 50,000 names to Senator Butler and was running 50,000 out of the 300,000 postage-free envelopes through an addressograph machine.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — It occurs that this is the three thousandth and first column I have written since coming with the Associated Press one blustery day a long, long time ago. That first day I wrote about the battered and old tombs of Trinity, a rather obvious choice, and caught cold because of a driving rain.

Since then I have written about evangelists and gangsters, torch singers and politicians, murders, fires, and ship wrecks. I was in on the Hauptmann trial, and the Hindenburg disaster at Lakehurst. I even remember the apple sellers, the Morro Castle fire, and the Welfare Island expose that smelled to high heaven.

When you kick around Broadway, Harlem and the waterfront this long you talk to a lot of people . . . I used to think Cecil B. DeMille was the most fluent conversationalist I ever listened to . . . Now I wouldn't know . . . Huey Long was appropriately loquacious when he wanted to be. H. G. Wells, Carl Van Doren, Zane Grey, John McGraw, Phil Strong, Al Smith, George M. Cohan—they could all talk when they wanted to.

A JOB such as this naturally leads you into unexpected situations. There was the night, during prohibition that the wrecking crews broke into a certain night club. Fifty feet of gorgeous mirrors were smashed. I remember seeing the late Helen Morgan sitting there.

Once a hard-bitten little fishing schooner put into port, and when she docked a police wagon backed up to the pier and took the mate off to jail. He was raving mad. He had gone mad at sea and insisted on ordering the ship to be run in widening circles. The crew finally discovered what was happening, but by then the cargo had spoiled.

There was the time a gangster turned out to be a book worm. A cop shot him, and as the officer leaned over him the dying hoodlum whispered, "That stuff about Life Beginning at 40 is all cockeyed; after 28, it doesn't matter any more."

I remember the day an 18 year old boy clung to the 12th floor ledge of a hotel for ten hours while thousands of people gathered in the street and implored him not to jump to his death. But he did.

IN THOSE days bon voyage parties and midnight sailings were the vogue. Reporters went down the bay every morning to meet the incoming liners and interview foreign diplomats, escapists, and soldiers of fortune. But those days are gone; the great Hudson piers for the most part are empty, save for the sad, doleful hulk of the Normandie...The freighters now haunt the Hoboken and Brooklyn waterfront, under "secret" orders....Paul Morand no longer writes of a New York "whose leavings would feed Asia." The gangsters, or most of them, are dead or behind bars. High magistrates have had their manties torn from them and a prison garb substituted. It has been a swift, melodramatic change from prohibition and depression on through a decade of kaleidoscopic pictures and impressions. One night a blind crooner sat in a speakeasy and wrote "I'm Looking at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses." One night they sprawled Dutch Schultz on his back and shot him full of holes. One night the word flashed that Hitler had invaded Poland. One night Roosevelt was elected for the third time....

And now? I wouldn't even guess. Things happen too fast. Ten years ago we knew all about Babe Ruth. But who'd have ever guessed a guy named Joe DiMaggio would take his place. That's what I mean!

A Farmer's Diary

Home-Made Storage

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WE HAVE four heaps of winter apples in the garden. I placed several inches of straw on the even surface of the ground, then carefully piled the fruit as high as gravity would permit. The red ones make interesting contrast with the border of fluffy yellow straw. For three weeks I left them there, covered slightly at the base.

Apples, when piled together, "sweat" during warm Autumn days. When exposed to wind, sun and even rain, there is a natural adjustment. I have often wondered just what happens, but I only know by experience that fruit will keep better when the pile is covered with earth after frosts or snow, if protected properly with a layer of straw just beforehand.

When I shovel earth around the sides, I make the covering only about four inches thick at first. When colder weather starts, but before the ground freezes heavily, I throw on four inches more. Around each mound of earth I excavate a ditch eight inches deep, and dig a drain at the lower side so that the surface water may run off freely.

At the base, on the north and south, I place a four-inch tile (for a pile of 10 bushels) extending part way into the layer of straw. I also set a heavy core of tightly packed straw, five or six inches in diameter, at the very top of the heap. These openings I cover with wire mesh to keep out rats, mice or rabbits. During cold weather I fit a board over the ends. Often when it grows warmer, and I pull this protection back, a small light wave of vapor shows, while all around the inside walls of tile are crystal beads of whiteness.

On cold frosty evenings, I have placed my hand deep into the strawy stopper at the top and felt a damp warmth almost like that when soil thaws and mellows in the spring. And I like to climb the firm snow-banked sides of the little storage, and catch the odor of the fruit. Even the sampling of the treasured contents would lack much without the delightful fragrance that rises from the heap.

Comedy Drama.

Bob Hope's new venture in hilarity, "Nothing But the Truth," showing at the Ohio presents an array of screen luminaries headed by Paulette Goddard, Rose Hobart, Clarence Kolb and Edward Arnold. Revolving around the efforts of Hope as a stock-seller to tell the truth for 24 hours in order to collect a bet, the picture presents Leif Erickson, and Glen Anders as Hope's two partners who contend he cannot do it. Most of the action takes place on a houseboat where Hope gets into all kinds of trouble by adhering to veracity.

Frontier Saga.

Saga of lawless frontiers and gun-smoking action, "Texas," the Madison attraction starring William Holden, Claire Trevor and Glen Ford, describes an historic period in America's development. Dealing with the time the Kansas Pacific railroad finally reached Abilene, Kansas, and Texas cattlemen battled their way through miles of bandit-ridden country to deliver their beef on the hoof, the picture shows the struggle of fearless men and women to carve out fortune on a new frontier. "Our Wife," the second attraction, presents Melvyn Douglas, Ruth Hussey and Ellen Drew in a gay comedy dealing with one man's fortune.

Hardy Picture.

"Life Begins For Andy Hardy," with Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone and Judy Garland continues through Wednesday at the Ritz. Gene Autry in "Down Mexico Way," is the co-attraction.

Ginger Rogers.

"Vivacious Lady," starring Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, opens Wednesday at the Park on the same bill with "Under Age," featuring Nan Grey and Alan Baxter. Expose of the tourist camp racket conducted by gangland agents, "Under Age" depicts how young girls are used as decoys for trade that is eventually blackmailed when the gang takes over. Eight of Hollywood's younger beauties play major roles in the production and the cast includes Tom Neal and Leona Maricle.

Comedy Success.

Katharine Hepburn's "The Philadelphia Story," picturization of Philip Barry's New York comedy success, opens Tuesday at the Majestic. The dynamic Miss Hepburn plays the role of a society girl whose divorced husband arrives on the scene just about the time she is to wed again. Cary Grant plays Husband No. 1, and John Howard, her second choice. Complications arrive when a reporter from a keyhole magazine, played by James Stewart, also appears to do a story on the whole affair at the instigation of Grant. Ruth Hussey and Roland Young are cast. "The Get-Away," with Robert Sterling and Donna Reed, is the second picture.

Hold Armistice Day Observance At Galion Today

GALION—Robert L. Moulton, Crawford county representative to the Ohio state legislature, was speaker this morning at the Armistice day observance held by Scarborough post, The American Legion, at the Senior high school auditorium.

The program started at 10:45 a. m., and was opened with a salute, taps, and echo. The color guard advanced the colors and the brass quartet played the national anthem.

Thirty seconds of silent prayer at 11 a. m. was followed with the program and address by Moulton.

Earlier in the day, a wreath was placed on the grave of Captain William D. Scarbrough at Fairview cemetery by Commander S. M. Brewer and Chaplain L. D. Crissinger of the local post.

ATTEND PARLEY

GALION—Delegates from Galion Senior and Junior high schools have returned from the 18th annual convention of the Journalism Association of Ohio schools which was held in Columbus at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Friday and Saturday.

The Friday feature was a panel discussion conducted by staff members of the Columbus Citizen. In the evening, the banquet speaker was Major Norman Thrie, newspaperman and humorist. Saturday morning was confined to round table discussions, and in the afternoon the conventionists attended the Ohio State-Wisconsin football game.

DISCUSS PLANS

GALION—Publicity plans for promoting the appearance here on Dec. 8 of Sinclair Lewis and Lewis Browne, two famous American authors, were discussed by the organization that is sponsoring the program, the local chapter of Quill and Scroll, at the home of Joanne Hoekstra, Monday evening. Quill and Scroll is a national honorary scholastic journalism fraternity, and for the past several years the local chapter has brought many internationally famous people to appear before a Galion audience. Glen Sherer presided for the business session which was followed with social hours and lunch. Miss Hoekstra was assisted by Phyllis Eckstein and Martha McManes.

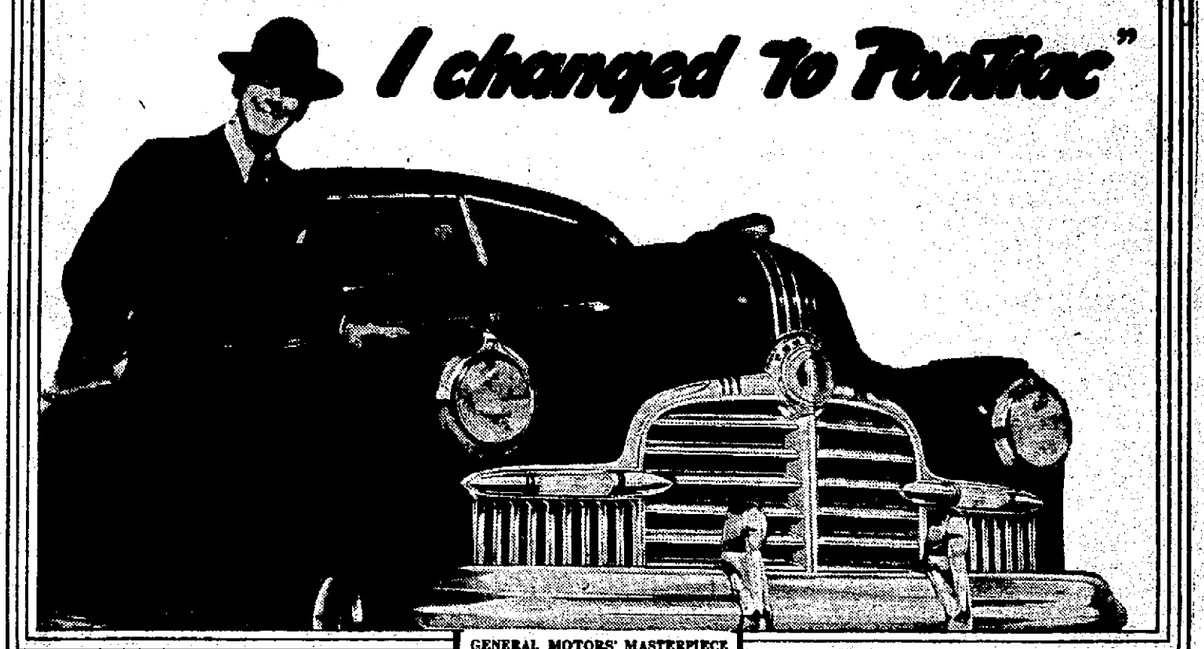
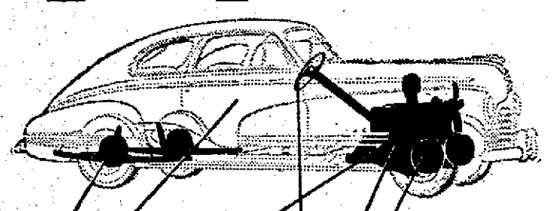
"No telling how long I may drive my next car—so I changed To Pontiac"



GENERAL MOTORS' MASTERPIECE

THE FINE CAR WITH THE LOW PRICE



MANY OF THE PEOPLE now driving new Pontiacs are former owners of both higher and lower-priced cars who have changed to Pontiac in a mass preparedness move. Unable to foresee how long they may drive their new cars, these motorists are turning to Pontiac for the proved long life and operating economy which have made Pontiac owners so overwhelmingly enthusiastic. They quickly learned that the new Pontiacs have the same important operating features as past, successful Pontiacs. They learned, too, that Pontiac prices remain only slightly higher than the lowest—only a few dollars more per month on available terms. Hence their far-sighted selection of Pontiac—a choice which you yourself will make once you discover how little it costs.

The ideal combination of Proved and Improved Features

- Triple-Cushioned Ride—even further improved—is still yours in 1942.
- New Bodies by Fisher provide the same strength and quality for which they have long been famous.
- Vital engine parts are unchanged for 1942 except for an improved oil cleaner.
- Travel of the gearshift lever has been reduced 30 per cent.
- Pontiac's gas and oil economy remains at the same high peak.
- For 1942 Pontiac front wheel brakes have been increased in size and all are now triple-sealed.

AVAILABLE AS A SIX OR AN EIGHT IN ANY MODEL

Your present car may cover part or perhaps all of the down payment on a 1942 Pontiac. The balance may be paid in monthly installments.

Proud To Be Doing Our Part

Pontiac is doing its part for National Defense by building a new type of rapid-fire cannon for the United States Navy. Two complete plants have been devoted to the exclusive manufacture of these cannon. Thousands of skilled craftsmen have been trained to operate the highly technical machines. Over two hundred sub-contracts have been awarded in order to get necessary materials in the shortest possible time. This means building fewer cars—but Pontiac places defense work ahead of everything else.

VICTORIAN MEMBERS GIVEN OHIO RESUME

Mrs. Jennings Presents Paper on "Our Predecessors In Ohio" at Home of Mrs. C. W. Jelliff, 136 Marion Avenue, Monday.

THE WORK of the moundbuilders was interestingly told in the talk given by Mrs. Alice Jennings on "Our Predecessors In Ohio" when Victorian club members met Monday. Mrs. C. W. Jelliff, 136 Marion avenue, was hostess at her home yesterday with many members in attendance. Mrs. Jennings told of the 300 miles of work done by the moundbuilders between the shores of Lake Erie and the Ohio river.

She explained the various types of mounds and gave a resume of their chief masterpiece, Fort Ancient, located on the banks of the Miami, near Cincinnati. This huge fort could accommodate 60,000 men and their families with many provisions and supplies. It was erected to protect them from the savages and is a striking evidence of organized society with an intelligent leadership and strong government.

Mrs. Anna Knote, Victorian club representative for the Mansfield Dental Clinic, spoke on the activities of the civic project. Mrs. Charles Brown, a delegate to the recent district meeting of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs at Ashland, gave a resume of the session.

At the close of the meeting tea was served. The next meeting will be held Nov. 24 at the D. W. Peppard home, West Fourth street. Mrs. Neumann will speak on "The French and British In Ohio."

Discussion Held On 'Meat' at Home Of Mrs. Freehafer

Mrs. Charles Freehafer, 422 Hammond avenue, entertained members of the Child Guidance club Monday evening at her home. She was assisted by Mrs. Forest Kimmel. Twenty members and two guests, Mrs. Lester Garber and Miss Plondke, were present. Miss Plondke, representative of the national livestock and meat board of Chicago, spoke to the group on "Meat Cookery and the Nutritive Value of Meat." She also discussed the health defense program.

Mrs. W. S. Fisher, jr., gave a paper on "The Value of Cooperation Between Teacher and Parent." Mrs. Harold Hamblyn's topic was "Teacher and the Modern School." Open discussion was held in charge of Mrs. Gaylord Herring. Mrs. Paul Ackerman led the brief business session.

Plans were discussed for the party to be held for the husbands on Dec. 8, the place to be announced later. A Christmas party will be given for the children at a later date. During the evening the members sewed for the hospital.

The hostesses served refreshments at the close of the program with decorations in keeping with Thanksgiving. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. L. J. Weaver, 137 Bartley avenue, with Mrs. LeRoy McGinty as associate. Mrs. L. D. Appleman and Mrs. J. M. Lehman will furnish the program at that time.

Zeta Rho Chapter Elects Officers

Members of the Zeta Rho chapter of Delta Theta Tau sorority held their regular business meeting Monday evening in the club rooms on Park avenue west. During the session plans were made for philanthropic work to be done during the holidays.

Mrs. Rollin Hunsicker was named corresponding secretary and Mrs. Ray Crider was elected publicity chairman at the close of the evening. The next meeting will be held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Hunsicker on Bartley avenue. A meeting will be held each Monday evening until the fifteenth of December.

Young Foreigner Wants to Meet Friends

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man 30 years of age, and am very lonesome, having just come from another country. I've been here about six months, have a good job, but want to make new acquainances. Could you tell me where I could go to meet friends of the right sort? I'm tired of running around alone and would like to meet a good girl who also is lonesome and interested in getting married.

Lonely.

It wouldn't do, when you find yourself in a strange city, to try to make acquaintances too quickly. Friends are our best assets and we have to be rather deliberate about acquiring them. I receive many letters like yours from young men and women who are lonesome.

The best way to make desirable friends is through those you know and trust. Young men have an easier time getting acquainted than girls. The men who work with you will introduce you to the right sort of girl, if they know you're all right too. Why not speak to the business or social connections you may have? Tell them that you're a stranger and would like to become acquainted.

If you like to sing, join a choral club; there are good ones in almost every city. Join the "Y. M." or similar organizations, and take up athletics and get acquainted with some of the men. If you belong to a church, join their social clubs and you will meet young men and women.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I were married at 17. We're 25 now and have two boys—six and one years of age. We always got along swell, until six months before the second baby was born. Then he met another girl. When the baby was two weeks old he left to go with this girl. Of course, I felt as anyone would under similar circumstances. But he wanted money and this girl had it. I started divorce proceedings.

For the past 10 months I've been going with a man who loves me, is fond of the children and wants to marry me when my divorce is final, in a couple of months. He has a good position and we get along well, but he is very jealous.

My husband married the girl, not legally of course, because my divorce isn't final, and they're going to have a baby. The other day I received a letter from him, wanting me to come to him. I haven't told him about the other man because he might stop sending me money. I don't know what to do. If I took him back, there'd always be that other child. And I'm really a bit skeptical about my husband. E. P.

You have every reason to be skeptical about a man who proved himself so weak and lacking in responsibility as your husband. Inasmuch as he is now the common-law husband of another woman, I can't see why you consider taking him back.

In your place I'd watch my step about making a second marriage as soon as your decree is final. You say this other man is jealous. Jealous husbands make difficult partners. Why not try to stand on your own feet before launching so quickly into another marriage?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

In your column I read about a young wife who is planning to "run home" to her parents with two children because of something her husband did. I would advise her to reconsider her plans and stay home with her husband and children. Her parents are getting old and I don't think it's fair to burden them with her troubles.

I found myself in similar circumstances. I had five children, but I forgave my erring husband as he loved our children as much as I did. He has always been a good man, a loving father, and a good provider. How is this mother going to educate and provide for her children? My advice is stay home.

Yours faithfully.

Well, lady, you and I agree as to the problem of the young wife whose husband had lipstick trouble. The man had been a model husband until he came home one night bearing the brand of Adam—a lipstick smudge—on his shirt collar. The young wife was all for going home with her two children, but we begged her to reconsider. She did reconsider, and everything is now going well.

And here's another correspondent, an older woman, who gives her a pat on the back and writes she had the same problem years ago but stood pat, and she and her husband seemed to have lived pretty happily in the meantime. Going home to mother is certainly the last resource.

Tomorrow's Problem.

HOUSEHOLD LINENS PATTERN 2904

Gifts of distinction are yours for a few simple stitches. And such a variety of motifs to choose from! Get busy on a pretty tea cloth, scarf or towel. Pattern 2904 contains a transfer pattern of 22 motifs ranging from 1⅞x2½ inches to 4⅝x8¼ inches; illustrations of stitches; materials required.

Send ten cents in coin for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern Number, your Name and Address.

If you're shorter and plumper than average and have always wanted a willowy figure, you'll welcome Pattern 9904 by Marian Martin! She designed it especially to give you height and slenderness. See those long panels in the front—they're cut in one piece from neck to hem and emphasize your vertical lines. A center panel does the same in back. You can button the panels together at the neck in front and accentuate them by top-stitching, or turn them back to form revers. The sleeves, if you make them short instead of three-quarter length or long, might be edged with ric-rac to match the revers. A belt is included—begin it at the sides of the front panels if you like. The Sew Chart is a great help.

Pattern 9904 may be ordered only in women's sizes, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards 54 inch fabric.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

LILLIAN'S whole body tensed at her husband's comment, and her voice was imperative as she almost shouted a query at him.

"What two points?" she demanded.

"Well, we know they haven't Marion concealed anywhere near the Grand Central Station. They naturally would telephone that telegram in a booth as far fram where they are holding her as they could find."

"What's the other point?" Lillian's tense voice queried.

"That she's nearer some of the other big switchboards of the city than she is the Grand Central," Harry Underwood went on. "If we get out a map of the city, and draw circles around the big switchboards, noting the distances between them and Grand Central, we'll have three or four circles, inside of one of which the probabilities are that the 'high place' which she indicates in the code is located. I'll wager that your father will comb all the skyscrapers inside those circles, unless we get some more specific clue beforehand."

"You mean from my visit to the restaurant?" Lillian asked.

"Perhaps, or perhaps other sources," the big man answered.

"Why can't we get a map and set to work at once?" Lillian demanded, and Miss Whitlock and I exchanged surreptitious glances of satisfaction. Here was work that would occupy some of her time, when otherwise only inaction and suspense stretched out endlessly before her.

"We can," her husband said promptly. "I have a number of them in my room, and I'll get them at once."

Wants Madge To Stay.

"Just a second!" I said as he rose. "You're not going to need me in this map studying, are you?"

"Lady Fair, we always need you," Harry Underwood said extravagantly, while Lillian's startled look held a trace of fear.

"You aren't going to leave me, Madge?" she pleaded.

"Not for long," I assured her, "but there are some things at the hotel to which I must attend for father, and it seems to me that now would be a good time to go over. Harry and Miss Whitlock are here, and you're going to be busy with those maps. What do you think, Miss Whitlock?"

"From my standpoint, this is the very best possible time for you to go," the nurse said, and I mentally thanked her for the corroboration, which I know she could not have given me unless I had put a direct question to her.

Lillian Understands.

"You will understand, won't you, Lillian?" I pleaded. "And I'll be back as soon as I get through the things I have to do for father."

She looked mutely at her husband and then, as if drawing strength from the sympathy and support mirrored in the big man's eyes, she turned her eyes on me.

"Of course I understand, dear girl," shes aid, "It's only that I feel so lost without you. But if Harry doesn't leave me, I don't really need anyone else."

"I shan't leave you," the big man said, "at least until Lady Fair flits back here again.

"Which I shall do in record time," I promised. "And now I think I'll be running along. Don't get up, darling," I adjured Lillian, as she started to rise to her feet.

"I'll see that she stays put," her husband promised as I bent to kiss her, and then I was at the door leading into the hall, and Lillian's voice sounded a protesting, militant command.

"Madge! You mustn't go back to the hotel by yourself! Your father wouldn't permit it. Harry must go with you. I'll be perfectly all right until he gets back."

"Okay," her husband said with surprising lack of protest. But when we were in the hall out of earshot, he stopped me with a serious face.

"I'm going to telephone your father for a car," he said. "I know he will agree with me that Lillian should not stay here without me, or a husky male guard, until this mix-up is over."

Walk Tip-Toe And Normalize Your Legs

By MME. QUI VIVE

When Madame Fashion cuts skirts almost knee high, the plump girl has a real grievance. She realizes that her fatted calves are nothing to yodel about. She thanks dress designers for permitting her to wear trailing draperies in the evening. She can, for the time being, forget that her legs have expanded beyond attractive proportions. If she is overweight she should go on a reducing binge, cut down weight gradually until measurements are normal. It is not a heart-breaking job. It can be done without great deprivations in the way of good things of the table.

It sometimes happens that the torso has not taken on flesh, but adipose tissues have thickened the thighs and calves. In that case, it is only necessary to cut down slightly on the intake of fats, starches and sweets, and to knuckle down to 15 minutes of exercise every day. Strenuous muscle work-outs will burn up fat cells; they can't stand it. They go off and die.

Even the lazy dearheart who won't bother with high kicking, stretching or bending stunts can manage the tip-toe reducing methods. During the day, if she is a home girl, she travels a number of miles attending to her domestic duties Let her, now and then, walk on her toes; she'll see a favorable change in leg contour.

By becoming a tip-toer she will get in her figure molding while doing her work. No time is lost. She must put plenty of spring in the step. She will not be able to continue very long, nor should she. When the muscles of the calves feel sore and tired, she must stop One should never exercise to the point of fatigue. Once a day she must sponge the calves with cold water, rub briskly with a coarse towel. The purpose of that treatment is to hustle up the blood streams so the flesh will not be left soft and flabby when fat cells have fallen into a state of dissolution.

One requirement, wear soft-soled shoes with plenty of toe width. Toes spread out fan-fashion when you lift the body up on them.

You can't expect to travel far along these calisthenic lines the first few days. But each day tendons and muscles will be stronger, reducing will be speedier.

A round or two of upside-down pedaling is recommended for leg reducing.

Lie on the back on the floor, hands under the buttocks for support. Lift the feet high in the air and pedal. With the upward movement of the foot the leg must be stretched full length: it is the stretching that does the business. Casual circles will accomplish nothing.

And you might try pummeling the fatted calves with a rolling pin. That tricks has been known to accomplish wonders. Crush 'em and grind 'em!

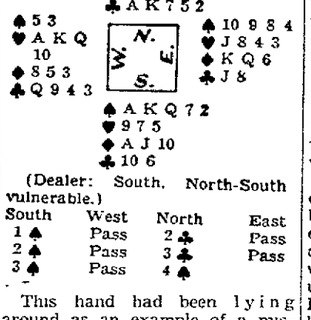
"The Authority on Authorities"

MAN ON A BOY'S ERRAND

Just as it is a mistake to use a small card to ruff when you can afford a larger one, so high that an opponent can't possibly over-ruff, it is equally in error to do vice versa. Once in a while we see a player spend a high trump for ruffing purposes which later is needed as a trick taker in the trump suit, in order to drop the hostile trumps. It pays to stop and think a moment before carelessly spending a high trump profligately.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

This hand had been lying around as an example of a mistake so flagrant that we were backward about using it until recently a Pittsburgher wrote in commenting on a hand which illustrated "sending a boy on a man's errand." His plea was that we present a case or two of sending a man on a boy's errand, and this is one.

As West ripped off his heart K and Q, and followed with his A, South quickly saw that he stood to lose two tricks in that suit and probably only one in diamonds—if either the K or Q happened to be held by East. So when the third heart honor was led, he came up with the dummy's spade J, making sure to win the trick. He didn't stop to think that, if West had a six-card suit headed by those honors, he would have bid it.

There is hardly any need to give the succession of the rest of the tricks. South had to lose a trump trick, following that waste, in addition to a diamond, so was set. If he had ruffed the third heart with the spade 6—a perfectly safe play—he would have been able to drop East's trumps and so make his contract.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Nov. 12.

A DIFFICULT day with many and surprising adversities and obstructions is the augury based on the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. A vague, erratic as well as surprising and stubborn state of affairs may challenge to most constructive and ingenious policies. With this there is promise of help and cooperation from high and influential places which may assist in breaking down very determined opposition, coming from elders, or superiors as well as enemies.

Those whose birthday it is while having many adverse and devastating situations to cleverly dispose of have some hopes of success and fair fortunes. But such materialize by well-ordered, restrained and wise conduct rather than wayward, erratic, impulsive and chaotic behavior. With control and sound tactics real friends may prove reliable when others may be bitterly antagonistic.

A child born on this day may need very early and rigorous training and discipline due to its highly nervous temperament.

Bake Mushrooms For a Change In Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN.

WE USUALLY saute mushrooms in butter until they are tender, and then serve them around or over the steak or roast of meat. Mushrooms may be baked, however, and cooked thus they are very good eating and a nice change.

Today's Menu.

Roast Pork, Baked Sweet Potatoes
Baked Mushrooms, Waldorf Salad
Midnight Cake Coffee.

Baked Mushrooms.

One pound mushrooms, 2 tbsps, flour, 1 cup milk, salt, pepper, cheese.

Cracker Crumbs.

Slice mushrooms and saute in a copper clad or other skillet with a little butter until well browned. Put in buttered casserole. Mix 2 tablespoons flour smooth with the milk, adding a little at a time and stirring all the time, season to taste, pour over mushrooms, cover with grated cheese, top with cracker crumbs, dot with butter and bake in 350 degree oven until brown on top, about 15 minutes.

Double Boiler Icing.

One egg white, ¾ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar, 3 tablespoons water, ½ teaspoon vanilla or other flavoring.

Combine egg white, sugar, cream of tartar and water in top of double boiler, and beat together just enough to completely blend ingredients. Put over rapidly boiling water and beat with rotary beater until mixture is white and very light. Icing is done when it barely holds its shape and is not runny as beater is pulled out. This takes from 5 to 7 minutes, depending on boiler and vigor of beating. Remove from over hot water and do not beat any more. Fold in flavoring, and spread over cake.

Midnight Cake.

One-half cup shortening, 1¼ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup hot water, ½ cup cocoa, ½ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups "kitchen tested" flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream until fluffy, blend in well-beaten eggs, then slowly add hot water to cocoa and mix smooth, stirring to dissolve completely. Sift soda, salt, baking powder and flour together and add to creamed mixture alternately with hot water and cocoa mixture. Blend in vanilla. Pour into an 8-inch square pan 2½ inches deep) which has been greased and lined with paper, and bake at 350 degrees F. for 50 to 55 minutes. When cool, spread with double boiler icing over top and sides.

Pupil Hates Reading If Poor at It

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Teachers and parents are forever saying, "Sid does not get along in reading because he is not interested." From a practical point of view they have put the cart before the horse. They ought to learn to think and say, "Sid isn't interested in his reading because he does not get along well in it. He doesn't like reading because he reads poorly. His brother, Bill, likes reading very much because he reads very well."

Pete Corbitt, 7, is not a good reader. He doesn't like it. He listens wells to stories which children 10 or 12 years of age read to him, and he constantly begs for them. When he succeeds in reading well alone, he will enjoy doing so. His parents' problem is to help him attain success in reading.

A mother said about her boy in the eighth grade: "Oh, if he were only interested in his school work! He hates reading. But if there is a tire to change, or something to be made, he will work his head off. Now, why doesn't he work just as hard at his studies?"

"Does he read well," I asked, "and does he read for pleasure?"

"No, indeed," rejoined the mother; "he never reads at all unless he has to. His brother reads exceptionally well and enjoys it, but doesn't care so much for the mechanical."

The Doctor's Answer.

If his brother did not get along so well in school this boy would, no doubt, do much better there. Each is interested in the line in which he excels.

Now quit telling him he ought to be interested, that he ought to study harder, or have better grades. See to it that every evening at the same time he reads aloud to you for at least half an hour from easy material. Go back and back until you find a book from which he can read successfully. If he miscalls many words or hesitates frequently, you know the book is too hard. He must read only what he can read well. If you set him to reading alone, you won't be sure whether he does read or not. He may enjoy having you read to him and then get him to read to you. Suggest no haste Make him feel that all is going well.

Whether it is reading or any other subject observe the same principle Help him find the kind of thing at which he can succeed. As he succeeds he will be interested and his interest will assure him more achievement. There is no motive like the motive of awareness of success.

FRONTIER U. + + + + + +

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XIX

The spotted fawn which Ward McMurray so tenderly presented to Joy Boone up in the mountains of Arizona, became in time the most renowned deer in America.

Back on the Frontier university campus on Monday morning, Joy appeared leading her pet with long blue and gold ribbons. By Tuesday she had caused a band of blue and gold, Frontier colors, to be dyed around its midriff, because ribbons to lead the tiny fellow were unnecessary now. It followed her much as a dog would, having learned that she fed it.

"It's positively the darlingest thi-i-i-ing!" some Frontier girl had gushed that Monday, and she in substance summarized what literally hundreds of girls said it every turn. In short, Joy Boone was in character again; she had created another sensation.

The Arizona Republic, Phoenix morning newspaper, pictured Joy and the fawn on Tuesday. Both were beautiful.

The Evening Gazette had a larger display Tuesday afternoon. By Saturday, newspaper syndicates had sen the photos to every corner of the nation. Within a few weeks colorchrome pictures came out in the more elaborate Sunday newspaper sections, most of them "playing up" America's Number One beauty and her fawn in full page illustrations. Mentions of Ward McMurray, Polly, Ken Palmer, and others on the hunting trip in Arizona, was quite incidental if given at all; it was always Joy who had the spotlight. But it did give little Frontier U. national attention again.

One immediate result was an arrangement by a radio chain to interview Joy on its "Interesting Personalities" programs, coast-to-coast. Technicians and narrators came to the Frontier campus with expensive equipment and much fanfare for the broadcast.

"Hello, New York!" The bright-voiced announcer began into his microphone. "I am speaking to you in the presence of the girl who has left you behind her—Miss JOY BOONE! And where is she tonight? Away out West! Even now Squaw Peak looms over us in the Arizona moonlight. On this very spot a battle with Indians was fought within the memories of men and women still living. And what does Manhattan's glamorette think of Arizona?"

That was Joy's pre-arranged cue. "I love it!" she declared.

"Better than the cities? Better than Broadway?"

"Oh no! They are grand, too. But this is different, and new!"

"Ah-h-h-h!" The smooth-voiced radio man was flowing on. "America's adventure girl in her newest adventure of all! She came west in her own plane and landed in a breath-taking, death-defying escape from a desert thunderstorm — we'll be telling you about that again in just a moment—and in a short two months she has seen the west, lived it, loved it, conquered it! Lovely Joy Boone, in action! The Personality Girl! And now at this moment, ladies and gentlemen of radioland, Miss Boone is cuddling a tiny orphan from the wilderness, a spotted fawn which—"

He poured it on pretty thick, as the listeners in Phoenix agreed. But it was characteristic of his program, and good in its way. At any rate the 15-minute interview made snappy entertainment, and the world heard Joy Boone's pleasant speech and laughter.

The narrator closed with a deft touch that merely colored the program for the outside world, but which gripped a part of the Phoenix audience as nothing else had done.

"Before our farewell to Arizona for this evening," he said, rather unctuously, "it is heartening to note that youthful romance is again about to be triumphant. Off the record, so to speak, I am able to report to you that Miss Boone, America's blond beauty, is 'that way' about the only man in Frontier university — none other than university president's son, himself! It's the talk of the town out here! And remember, all the world loves a lover!"

He spread it on a bit more, signed off the air. Sleepy little Frontier had experienced another topnotch thrill.

A great many schoolmates hastened to congratulate Joy. In the dormitory where she had the choicest suite of rooms, more than a hundred girls all but engulfed her, demanding more details.

"When did he propose? When will you marry him? Aren't you just too excited? It's all so wonderful! Tell us, Joy!"

Questions and gushings on top of themselves. Joy basked in it, hearing it all as a happy sort of crescendo, answering none of them direct because she had no chance to for a while. It was not until the rush of excitement subsided and one calmer senior spoke, that she could answer direct.

"Well Joy," the girl beamed happily at her, "you really do deserve congrats. You've got your man!"

Joy looked at her as if surprised, smiling a little dreamily. "Have I? Have I, really?"

She tucked in her lower lip, a mannerism; and her violet eyes were starry now. She was gracious with it. Not cocky, not arrogant. Just a little girl, honest with herself; thrilled pink with the most exhilirating triumph any girl can know.

From a distance Polly McMurray wa slooking at her. But Polly was singularly quiet.

It was perhaps just as well that Ken Palmer didn't hear the broadcast that evening.

He and his friend Ward McMurray had ridden out on the north range of the vast Paradise Ranch that afternoon, helping with some branding work again. Ken had learned not only to rope calves with accuracy but to enjoy doing it. Ward taught him to apply the hot branding iron, and to make just the correct ear slits which further marked Paradise steers in customary manner. It was all vigorous, zestful man's work, and therefore delightful. Ken quite forgot his interest in books for the time being. The regular cowboys, moreover, were slowly developing a genuine respect for him.

"You catch on like you was bawn to it," one of them spoke in tribute. "You'd make a cow hand. You want one of my cigarets?"

"Thanks, Lefty. That's a compliment from an expert like you. The fact is, I like it. Handling stock."

"Yeamp. Some do. It's why we work at it, I reckon. Well, okay, Ken."

Ken didn't realize it, but from that moment he "belonged." He had been accepted by the rather exclusive if unlettered clan known as real cowboys. The word would get quickly around, Ward McMurray knew. It gave Ward considerable pleasure.

But if Ken had overcome his awkwardness to considerable extent on the rangeland, he was still a retiring, shy sort when he got back to town. At the university he slipped quickly into his routine of classes and library study. He was making good progress in his special research into southwestern folklore.

He was back in the library, deep in one of the alleys made by sections of bookshelves, when sheer chance next morning enabled him to overhear two girls talking. They were within a few feet, through one of the book tiers there, but quite out of sight of the young man.

"They must have been engaged for days," one of them was half whispering, too loud. "With Ken Palmer—imagine!"

That mention of his name arrested him. He was instantly alert.

"Well, Joy Boone can marry any man she wants," the second girl said. "She's got plenty of what it takes, all around. I'd make eyes at Ken myself but I know he wouldn't see me for dust." She sighed elaborately. "He's poor as a church mouse, you know that, Marie. He's probably marrying her for her money as much as anything, but I guess it's all right. For money and—and prestige. It would be something of a catch to get America's wealthiest and most famous girl! But she is good looking, I admit that. She's been running after him till it's scandalous. I don't believe he—"

The girls passed on then, and Ken heard no more.

But for a full minute he stood there appalled. His facial expression had frozen into one of near horror. He put his book back on its shelf, moving like a automaton. Then, slowly, he edged toward the door. He didn't want to be seen. He didn't want to face any one here, lest some finger publicly point at him.

When he was out of the room, though, he began to run down the hallway. It was a sort of ignominious retreat, yet he could have said from what.

He was almost frantic by the time he had reached the campus. His frown was so noticeable that girls stared at him. He did not appear to hear the four or five who spoke. He saw then hazily, though, and broke into a run again.

He was not at ease when he reached his father's cottage, nor even in his own room. He left there again, went to his old jaloppy and started off in the thing. Vaguely, almost desperately, he realized he wanted to talk to someone. He needed some friend. Not some relative or adult for "advice," but some one who was intimate with him and who could understand.

He found himself presently driving out the Paradise Ranch road. Oddly, that ranch seemed like a haven now. He was thinking of Polly McMurray. He knew this was Polly's free morning, the one morning in the school week when she didn't have classes and so didn't come to school until noon. As usual, he had looked around for her earlier when he first came toward the library, but she was not in any of the groups of girls he had seen. Come to think of it, he had begun to look for Polly McMurray more and more of late. Strange he hadn't realized that before.

He knew only that he had a desperate yearning to see her now. To see her and talk with her.

ARMISTICE DAY

Today we honor those, living and dead, who fought in the first World War. It is sad to realize that the task they so faithfully performed is once again before us.

Let us all firmly resolve that this time it shall be finished . . . That the freedom of our succeeding generations shall not again be menaced.

That is the least we owe to those who so gallantly gave their lives in the last war.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—All the furor about immediate war with Germany, while justified by the facts, seem to be obscuring for the public that we are likely to be in war with Japan before active hostilities commence with Hitler.

Johnson

There seems no way out. However little one may agree with the view that we have a stake in the Orient worth fighting for, the fact remains that we have set up a policy demanding certain things of Japan as the price of peace, and nothing that Japan has appeared willing to concede comes within miles or even approximating compliance.

A show-down is almost at hand after the long and very clever power game played by both nations to avoid it. We have emphatically announced that we will not back down, and the Japs are hardly able to back down without letting their tremendous if misguided efforts for so many years go for nothing.

The situation is almost grotesque. We don't want war. The Japanese people don't want war. It is hard to say what verdict history will write of our getting into war with so little to gain, so much to lose, where we have so little business, and on the very verge of another war in the Atlantic and beyond. It is hard to say, but if the writing of past history is any guide, it won't be very flattering.

It will probably be that we did it to destroy a rival naval power that we felt might some day menace us, and to preserve the British empire.

What turn it will take or how it will end, no man can say. I think it is likely to be an almost interminable naval and commerce-destroying war. This comes at a time when we need not only all our navy but all the ships we can build and otherwise acquire to fulfill our other engagements to send supplies, warships and possibly armies across the ocean and half-way around the world.

It seems to me about the worst strategy that could be adopted, but this column isn't directed so much to that as it is to what seems to me the almost complete lack of public realization of what is happening under our noses—war with Japan. If it isn't ignorance it is apathy, but that is just as astonishing. That people should be careless of the fact that we are about to go all the way across the Pacific ocean to fight a war just as we begin to engage in another war all the way across the Atlantic is simply incredible.

When the Pacific war is over, even if it ends in complete victory, what will we demand there, what do we want there, and what will we get? We have wanted little, demanded less, and got practically nothing. With Japan out of the way as a menace to them, the Filipinos will again ask their independence and get it.

Then we shall be out of the Orient bag and baggage, but in the meantime shall have fought a war costing billions more than we have counted on yet, and with little better reason than that our government, as distinguished from our people, desire it.

It is probably a waste of paper to write this piece because, unless all signs fail, it is too late to avoid war in the Pacific.

AUDITOR SAYS COUNTY TO END '41 IN 'BLACK'

Reports It'll Be First Time In Decade It Has Operated Within Income.

Richland county has operated within its income this year for the first time in at least a decade and will finish the year with an operating fund balance of six or seven thousand dollars, Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said yesterday.

Last year the county government finished "in the black," but several debts to the state had to be left unpaid to do it, the auditor said.

"We have those state obligations all cleaned up now and are in the best financial condition in a long time," Wolfe commented.

The county paid off the last of its bonded indebtedness last year. On Nov. 1 the county had an operating balance of $62,635, and the auditor estimated that there would be at least $30,000 more coming into the treasury from county office fees and sales tax collections in the remaining two months of the years.

Wolfe said the operating expense has increased some this year, but the gain in tax valuations and better tax collections has more than offset the higher operating cost. A new building boom in the county last year helped to boost the property valuations and tax receipts, the auditor said.

The county received $40,000 in the final distribution of property taxes which was just completed. An advance of $50,000 in tax receipts was made to the county when operating funds ran low about two months ago.

The last-half settlement gave Mansfield schools $204,897; Shelby city, $20,353; Madison township, $12,587, and Madison schools, $23,299. Allocations to all county districts amounted to more than $600,000.

When Scout John Gibson of Mansfield's troop six, and Scout Carl Bachmann of Ashland's troop six march up to the platform at the Boy Scout area court of honor Thursday evening, to receive their awards for proficiency in some branch of scouting, they will be two persons out of only five in the Johnny Appleseed area to ever receive the golden quill badge for outstanding work in journalism. Based on points earned for stories and photos printed in approved publications, very few of these awards are made annually, because they involve years of work to gain the required number of points.

Priorities have hit about everything else and at last its Mansfield's garbage cans. Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the city's garbage department, announced yesterday that his department had been unable to supply at least twelve new customers with garbage cans and had returned $2 deposits to about three dozen other residents asking for replacements for worn-out receptacles. Although the city has had an order in for additional cans for more than a month, government priorities restrictions on the manufacturers have prevented their delivery.

Scores of Mansfield motorists bought parking time today which they could have had free. Armistice day being a legal holiday, the city's parking meters were not supposed to be in operation. Police did not patrol the city seeking violations but several drivers, who forgot that date, deposited their money regardless. On Election day, patrolmen put out more than a dozen tickets in the afternoon before they realized it was a half holiday.

Little Sally Oberlin, eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Oberlin, 431 Marion avenue, has realized the ambition of all poets. She has sold her first poems—and for the price she asked, too. Sally enclosed seven of her verses with a note to The News-Journal, explaining that she "would like to sell them" and "they are worth one cent." She will receive a check for one cent from The News-Journal. Sally's poems, which she illustrated with pencial drawings, are about bunnies, her dog, a pet frog, and a mouse. The concluding verse of each or them read: "I'd better run along; The school bell's ringing, ding-dong; so long."

ACCUSES 20 KEY MEN IN DEFENSE WORK

Plans To Make Public Their Names In Open Letter To President.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The Dies committee will soon make public the names of 20 "key men" in the defense setup whom it will accuse of being members of Communist front organizations, investigators disclosed today.

While they declined to reveal the names at this time or just what branches of the defense picture they fit into, attaches said several front organization members have been found in the new office of coordinator of information.

Present plans are to make the names public in an open letter to President Roosevelt. The officials will not be accused of Communism, but will be charged with belonging to one or more of the many groups which the committee previously has labeled "Communist fronts."

The medium of a letter to the president was used before to make public similar charges against price administrator Leon Henderson.

Later the committee sent a list of 1,124 names of federal employes in virtually every branch of the government to Attorney General Biddle, contending these people were members of such organizations.

These names, however, were never made public. At the time this letter was sent, the committee declared that it had not then investigated the new defense setups, but would do so later.

The 20 asserted "key figures" were regarded as the starter to a longer list which will include many lesser employes whose names probably will not be made public.

Among organizations which it was asserted that the 1124 government employes were affiliated with were the Washington committee for Democratic Action, the American League for Peace and Democracy, and the Washington committee to Aid China.

While the investigators said that the new list will concentrate on the new OCI headed by Col. William J. Donovan, they said that Donovan himself was not named.

What's more, she no longer slinks into the oases with that expression of "Look me over boys, I'm bored but gorgeous;" she is still a glamor babe, but a babe with plenty of enthusiasm, not too tired to patty-cake with her lily white hands when entertainers are in the spotlight.

She's dined four times at the St. Regis Maisonette because she's taken a fancy to Eva Ortega's singing. At Spivy's, she sat at the ringside singing old Viennese songs. She clapped like mad for Jean Sablon at the Persian Room and afterwards went to his room to tell him how good she thought he was.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Freda Hawk, 45, Dies at Home; Funeral Thursday.

Mrs. Freda Krebs Hawk, 45, a resident of Mansfield for the past 25 years, died early today at her home, 215 West Fifth street, following an illness of several weeks.

Born near Martel, Marion county, on June 9, 1896, Mrs. Hawk came to Mansfield in 1916. She was a member of the United Brethren church in Mansfield and also of the Golden Link chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution of Galion.

Survivors are her husband, Victor S. Hawk, and a daughter, Maxine Hawk, at home; a sister, Mrs. Amanda Bradley, Galion; and a brother, John C. Krebs, LaRue. The body was removed to the Jones Memorial where funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 1 p. m. by Rev. James L. Boyer. Burial will be in Memorial Park.

ILLNESS OF 5 WEEKS FATAL

Mrs. Ernest Kitzmiller, 53, Succumbs at Home; Rites Thursday.

Mrs. Ernest Kitzmiller, 53, of 375 Bell street, died at her home early today after an illness of five weeks. She had been a resident of Mansfield for six years, having been a native of Huron county.

Surviving her are her husband, three brothers, Lewis Moon of Tiro, Charles of Norwalk and William of Shelby, and two stepsons, Robert and Richard Kitzmiller of Mansfield.

The body was taken to the Dye funeral home in Shelby where funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Thursday by Rev. Arthur Staples. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery at Plymouth.

Temperatures

Daily Mansfield temperature range of 24 hours ending at noon today: High—34. Low—30. Average (24 hours)—32. Average (16 years)—41.8. Precipitation—Trace of snow. Temperature at noon—30.

BALLOT ON TWO MANSFIELDERS

C. of C. To Vote on Van Derau as Director; Manufacturers on Draffan.

Two Mansfield business executives have been nominated for positions as directors of two state commercial and industrial organizations and will be voted upon late this week.

C. L. Van Derau, manager of manufacturing at the Mansfield plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, has been nominated a member of the board of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce while George L. Draffan, executive vice president of the Ohio Brass company, has been nominated for a similar position with the Ohio Manufacturers association.

Should Van Dereau be elected at the Chamber of Commerce state convention in Toledo on Thursday and Friday, Mansfield will have two representatives on the organization's board. John W. Graham, business manager of The News-Journal, is serving the second of a three-year term as a director.

Draffan is almost certain to be named on the Ohio Manufacturers' board because 10 members will be elected and only 10 have been nominated. Members may write-in nominees for the board but it is not expected that any statewide write-in campaign is contemplated. Nominations will close Saturday.

A delegation from the local Chamber of Commerce will attend the state convention this week. Heading the group will be Robert C. Remy, president, who will be accompanied by Van Dereau, Graham, W. L. Mehl, J. W. Gilkison, Clarence Connor and John G. Routzon, secretary-manager.

FATHER, SON FACE CHARGES

Accused of Assault Following Altercation at Lexington.

A Lexington man and his two sons are scheduled to go before Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in Mansfield Wednesday morning on charges of assault and battery growing out of an altercation Saturday night in a Lexington tavern.

Taken into custody yesterday on complaints filed by Frank Dillon, the tavern proprietor, were Ray O'Leary, 48, Lexington R. D. 2, the father; Leroy O'Leary, 21, Lexington R. D. 2, and Edward O'Leary, 24, of 262 West Longview avenue, Mansfield.

Dillon said the three men assaulted him when he asked them to leave the tavern. The charges were filed in municipal court here and the O'Learys were arrested yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs J. R. Hetler and G. C. Humphrey. The defendants were released under $500 bond each until the hearing.

SERGT. YORK ASSERTS WORLD WAR 1 LOST 'IN THE PEACE'

(By Associated Press)

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—Sergeant Alvin C. York, outstanding American hero of the 1914-18 World war, looked back over 23 years today and told an interviewer the war was lost "in the peace."

Famed for his single-handed capture of 132 Germans, York said that "we should have gone right through Germany and conquered her."

The 53-year-old Tennessee mountain farmer, here to observe the 23rd anniversary of the armistice that closed the World war, repeated "we should have gone right through Germany and conquered her," adding "and this war never would have happened."

This time, he said, "we are going to have to take Germany off the face of the earth and put all the other little warring nations under a protectorate of the democracies."

He expressed belief Germany's only hope for victory over Britain and Russia lay in her air power.

"But you can drop all the bombs you want to and you can't conquer anything," York went on. "It takes the soldier on the ground to hold it. And they can't get that many into England."

"We can get along better without declaring war," he said of his own nation. "We have to get guns, food and equipment to the Allies. That means we have got to deliver it, see that none of it is sunk."

York planned to ride in a parade with Mayor William H. Dress and Irvin Schenk of near Evansville, new president of Future Farmers of America, and lay a wreath on the grave of James Bethel Gresham, whose death in action Nov. 3, 1917, in France was the first in the American expeditionary force.

ILL 3 HOURS

Mrs. Hazel Underwood Thrush Dies at Hospital.

Mrs. Hazel E. Underwood Trush, 53, died yesterday evening at General hospital three hours after suffering a heart attack at her home, 345 West Third street.

Born in Mansfield Oct. 5, 1888, she was a life-long resident of this city, and was a member of the United Brethren church.

She is survived by her husband, Glenn A. Thrush, three step sons, LaVerne, Aubrey, and Dale; and two step daughters, Mrs. Richard Parkinson, and Mrs. Homer Drake, all of Mansfield.

Also surviving are four brothers, Frank, Edward, Harold and Walter Underwood, all of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 3 p. m. Thursday, with Rev. James L. Boyer, pastor of the United Brethren church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

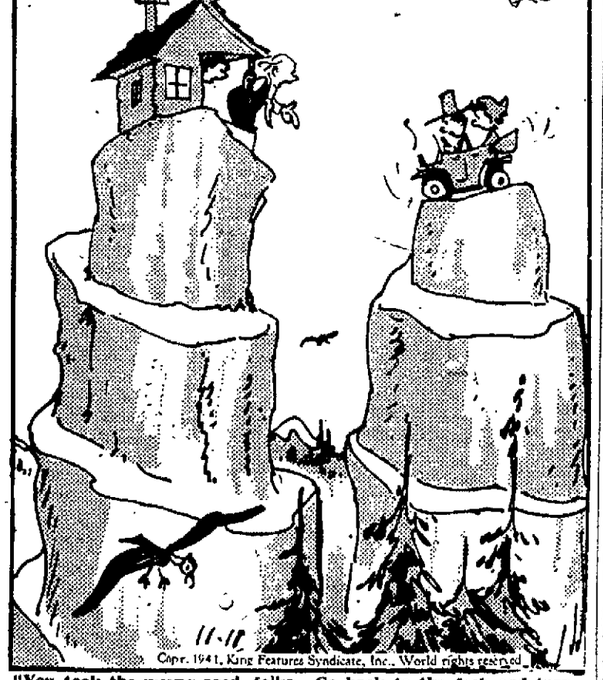
RESUME HUNT FOR HIT-SKIP

BUCYRUS—Crawford county authorities today continued their investigation of the "hit-skip" killing of Doris Wilson, 15-year-old North Robinson high school sophomore, near her home Saturday night, but reported there had been "no new developments."

Sheriff A. H. French and Prosecutor Leo Scanlon said that they were in agreement with Coroner O. R. Kackley's decision that the girl had been killed when struck by an auto driven by a motorist who fled the scene.

This decision dismissed the authorities former belief that the girl had been the victim of "foul play" and had either jumped or been thrown from a speeding car.

Laff-a-Day



"You took the wrong road, folks. Go back to the fork and turn right. We'll expect you Tuesday."

W. W. WEBB DIES

Accountant Dies of Heart Attack on Way Home.

Stricken while on the way home from a business call, Walter W. Webb, 44 Western avenue, Mansfield accountant, was found dead on the lawn in front of a Rae avenue residence late yesterday.

Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, said death was due to coronary thrombosis.

The body was found by Joan Van Tilburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis L. Van Tilburg, 137 Rae avenue. He had been walking along the street and evidently collapsed in front of the Van Tilburg home. The Van Tilburgs summoned Mansfield police who in turn called the coroner.

Mr. Webb was born in Plymouth on Jan. 21, 1869 but had resided in Mansfield for several years, maintaining a public accountant's office. In recent years, he has been associated with the R. E. Moorhead Auto Sales company.

He was a member of the First Christian church of Mansfield and the Bucyrus Elks lodge. Survivors include his wife, Minnie L. Webb; a daughter, Mrs. R. E. Moorhead, both of Mansfield; a brother, Henry Webb of Plymouth, and two grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Jones Memorial home where services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger officiating assisted by Rev. Henry Ford. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

INFANT DIES

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hooper Succumbs At Birth.

Sondra Kay Hooper, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hooper, 332 Wayne street, died last night at her home shortly after birth.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by two sisters, Ima Jean and Margaret Louise, and one brother, William P. Hooper, jr., at home.

Also surviving are her grandfathers, Pearly Hooper and William Petterson of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery at 4 p. m. today.

'Ever-Normal' U. S. Granaries Filled To Overflowing

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The nation's larders and granaries are stocked today with probably the largest food and feed supplies on record.

Record and near-record yields of principal crops, plus large reserves stored from previous years, give the national ample supplies to meet both American and British requirements, the agriculture department reported.

The 1941 corn crop estimated at 2,675,373,000 bushels is expected to be the largest since 1932 and almost 370,000,000 bushels above the 1930-39 average. The average yield of 31.1 bushels per acre forecast would be the largest in 75 years, except for 1906.

The 1941 wheat crop of 961,194,000 bushels, giving the nation more than 1,250,000,000 bushels, was almost 150,000,000 bushels larger than last year and 215,000,000 bushels above the 1930-39 average crop.

M. A. VANCE, 77, DIES NEAR LUCAS

Marion A. Vance, 77, died late yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Autie Griffetts, two miles east of Lucas, following a long illness.

Mr. Vance was born in Morgan county, Ky., but has resided with his daughter for the past several years. He is survived by a son, Clark Vance, Salt Lick, Ky., seven daughters, Mrs. Autie Griffetts of near Lucas, Mrs. Lou Miller, Ashland, Ky., Mrs. Daisy Vance, Dunbar, W. Va., Mrs. Tavy Nipper, Deahart, Ky., and Mrs. Beatrice Griffetts, Mrs. Reva Nichol and Mrs. Rhoda Vance, all of Mansfield; a sister, Mrs. Renda Harper, West Liberty, Ky.; a brother, Dave Vance, Cedar Bluff, Va.; 45 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Jones Memorial. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

UNION SERVICE

WILLARD—A union Thanksgiving service will be held in the Presbyterian church here Sunday evening.

Rev. Paul W. Sharp of the United Brethren church will give the address and music will be by a group of young people from the high school directed by Miss Agness Moore.

There, boys and girls, is a cold as is a cold. It's bad enough when you can't talk straight, and when you can't breathe at all, but when even your typewriter catches it, medical science is completely baffled.

Of course the medicos would tell me to go home and go to bed and stay there, but how can I see football games in bed? And how would that cure my typewriter?

It isn't the cure that bothers me, it's the cause. I thought I had it licked for this week-end coming up when I saw the schedule called for a game Saturday afternoon, and then they went and changed it on me to Friday night. This night air is killin' me. Oh, you're not sorry, eh. All right.

I'm not the only one who's been taking a beating in this damp football season. Nearly 8,000 daring souls braved Friday night's snowstorm to see the Canton McKinley game.

And I think if I had been any one of those 8,000 persons I'd have been bright enough to stay home I had to be there, but they just wanted to be.

Persons are the craziest people.

But there have been nights when they were bright enough to stay home. And then the high school suffered, well over a thousand bucks worth of suffering. Now for me, that WOULD be suffering. I'd rather have my cold.

Buckeye Beers Take First Place

Buckeye Beers went into first place in the Industrial bowling league last night at Colony alleys with a 3-0 win while Sons of Herman dropped out of the top spot by losing three games and are now two games behind the pace.

Urschel of the Buckeyes rolled high total of 563 on games of 190-186-187.

After hitting 120 in his first game, Pfizenmayer of Sun Glow turned in high game of 252.

Case Play Hit By Injuries

Ohio's Only Unbeaten, Untied Team Worried.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Ohio's only unbeaten and untied football team has its traditionally good fullback, too many injuries and a sphinx-like handy man.

And Case School of Applied Science also has two more games in the space of six days, which makes Coach Ray Ride say "it's going to be plenty tough."

Case has always prided itself on its fullbacks. Bob (Moose) Melreit carries on the tradition, and very ably.

The injuries have struck particularly hard at left halfback, which is a tailback job. That's where the handy man comes in, a close-mouthed individual named Bob Lehto, a junior from Ashtabula. He will take over the job left open by Chuck Mlakar and Bill Bennett, both out for the season.

Glenn Konker, senior quarterback with a good passing arm, and Bill Eicher, a sophomore who gains considerable yardage from right half, complete the first string backfield but Case is weak on replacements.

The Rough Riders have won six in a row, starting with 33 to Lehigh's 26. It soon became evident Melreit would need a relief man, and Ride searched desperately until the obscure Lehto quietly remarked that he had played three years of fullback in high school. He got the assignment of understudying Melreit.

Then left Halfback Mlakar was hurt. To win from Kent State, 7 to 6, Ride used Melreit at left half and put Lehto into the starting fullback position. Melreit had to return to fullback, however, for the 40 to 0 win over Wooster and the tight squeak over John Carroll, 8 to 6.

Against Carnegie Tech Ride wanted some help for Bennett and Eicher, so he tried Lehto at left half. Case won, 27 to 0, and Lehto shone.

Last Saturday against Baldwin-Wallace, Mlakar attempted a comeback but the first time he tried to carry the ball his injured knee gave way. To make matters worse, Bennett's ankle was broken. But Case won, 35 to 7, chiefly on Konker's passing and a good line.

Now the quiet handy man, an ex-fullback, has the chief responsibility for the tailback spot. And if anything should happen to Konker, the coach probably could switch Lehto to signal-calling duties.

Ride has no worries about the line.

Next Saturday the Rough Riders go down to Ohio Wesleyan, just recovering from its second defeat in seven starts, a 21 to 0 trimming by Ohio U. If Case can stretch its string of victories at the expense of the Bishops, its Thanksgiving game five days later against Western Reserve will be a football natural, with the Big Four title at stake.

WILDCATS FACE IRISH MINUS 2 ACE TACKLES

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—Northwestern will face Notre Dame Saturday minus the services of ace tackles Leon Cook and Tony Samarzia, Coach Lynn Waldorf said today.

Not too downhearted, however, Waldorf planned to use Ray Vincent at right tackle and Warren Karlstad at left. George Benson and Capt. Tuffy Chambers, who missed the Indiana game last week because of leg injuries, will be ready for the Irish, the coach said.

CITY CAGE LEAGUE TO OPEN SEASON

Managers of teams in the City "A" basketball league will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at Yuncker's store to complete plans for an early opening of the season's schedule.

Three Tied In Club League

Liederkranz and Legion Pull Even With Bankers.

Club bowling league standings were thrown into a three-way tie for first place last night at Colony alleys when Liederkranz and American Legion each scored 3-0 victories while Mansfield Savings dropped from the top with a 2-1 win.

* * *

The three leaders are only four games ahead of the 11th and 12th place Schoolmasters and Doherty Frat, making this race still the closest in Mansfield bowling.

* * *

The Legion took scoring honors last night with high total of 2,795 and high game of 937. Wes Carr rolled high individual total of 604 and Black had high game of 233.

COLDS HIT GOPHERS BEFORE IOWA FRACAS

MINNEAPOLIS —(INS)— The Minnesota squad was considerably weakened by colds today and Coach Bernie Bierman was not at all sure that Capt. Bruce Smith and Herman Frickey, halfbacks who have been out of the last two games, would be ready for action against Iowa Saturday.

One cheerful note, however, was that Bill Baumgartner, end who sustained a broken ankle in the Washington contest early in the season, will be back in the lineup.

WINS BOUT

NEWARK, N. J. —(AP)— Scoring one knockdown, Buddy Knox of Dayton, O., decisioned Sailor Frank Poreda of Jersey City last night in a 10-round boxing bout. Knox, weighing 192, outfought his opponent throughout. Poreda weighed 198.

Shelby Aces Who Meet Tygers Friday

GEORGE YORK BOB LAUBIE JUNIOR BONECUTTER

Three backfield aces of the Shelby high school Whippets who renew their long-standing rivalry with Mansfield's Tygers at Stadium field Friday night are shown here, George York, fullback, Bob Lauble, captain and quarterback, and Junior Bonecutter, left half. Laubie last year was selected on the North Central Ohio league all-star team.

Notre Dame, Northwestern Tangle In Game Of Week

By JACK GUENTHER

NEW YORK —(U.P.)—All but one of the nation's seven unbeaten football Titans risk their records this week against rivals who have nothing to lose and all to gain, and out of the scramble will emerge the Big Six king, a couple of bowl biggies and possibly the mythical national champion.

There's only one choice as game-of-the week and that is the meeting of undefeated Notre Dame and burly Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., for the Irish this is the contest that makes or breaks the best season since the era of Knute Rockne, and for Northwestern it's one swell chance for revenge.

Turn back the clock to 1936 and you'll get the angle on this. That was the year the Wildcats whipped everyone they faced only to have their dreams of a national crown go up in smoke when the Irish clipped them, 26-6. On Saturday the positions will be reversed, and Northwestern hasn't forgotten the past.

* * *

The Irish, with six victories and a tie in seven starts, should find the Wildcats their most serious opposition.

Here are the other standout contests:

Missouri-Oklahoma at Columbia, Mo.—The Big Six pennant and a possible jaunt to sunny lands on New Year's Day are the prizes at stake here. Only a micrometer expert can find anything to choose between them.

Duquesne-Mississippi State at Pittsburgh—The only game which matches two undefeated teams. These two fought it out in the Orange Bowl in 1937, and Saturday they fight it out again for a probable return trip.

Minnesota-Iowa at Iowa City —Unless the Hawkeyes have improved faster than Pitt this contest is important only because it will help make Minnesota's Big Ten title official and carry the Gophers a little closer to the national championship. Minnesota, 3-1, but remember Texas.

* * *

Stanford-Washington State at Palo Alto, Calif.—Stanford holds a one-game edge towards the Pacific conference crown and western Rose Bowl bid, but the Indians face a team which has lost two games by only a single point and has a giant-killing reputation.

Duke-North Carolina at Durham, N. C.—The Blue Devils hope to impress their clients with a big score here and balance a weak schedule.

Touchdown Tactics

By HERBERT M. KOPF
Manhattan College Coach.

THE SITUATION: Your team, trailing 7-6, has the ball on the opponents' 18-yard line. It is third down and there are only 20 seconds left to play in the game. You have held an offensive edge throughout and have made a steady march to reach your present position. You have good backs, a tricky offense and also a good field goal kicker. Remember, third down, 20 seconds left. That's the situation. Now, given the following choices,

HERB KOPF

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

1. Pass?
2. Run?
3. Try for a field goal?
4. Try a trick play?
5. Fake a pass and run?

(Answer in tomorrow's paper)

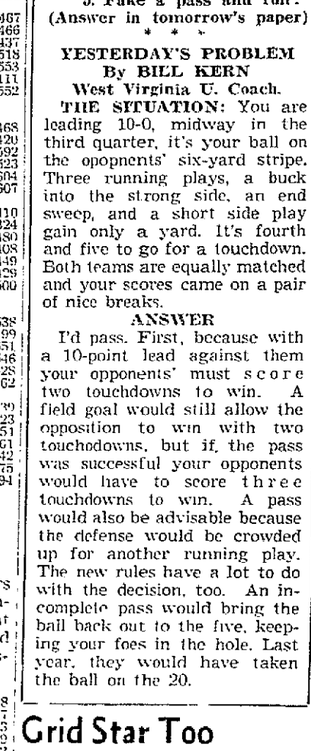
YESTERDAY'S PROBLEM
By BILL KERN
West Virginia U. Coach.

THE SITUATION: You are leading 10-0, midway in the third quarter, it's your ball on the opponents' six-yard stripe. Three running plays, a buck into the strong side, an end sweep, and a short side play gain only a yard. It's fourth and five to go for a touchdown. Both teams are equally matched and your scores came on a pair of nice breaks.

ANSWER

I'd pass. First, because with a 10-point lead against them your opponents' must score two touchdowns to win. A field goal would still allow the opposition to win with two touchdowns, but if the pass was successful your opponents would have to score three touchdowns to win. A pass would also be advisable because the defense would be crowded up for another running play. The new rules have a lot to do with the decision, too. An incomplete pass would bring the ball back out to the five, keeping your foes in the hole. Last year, they would have taken the ball on the 20.

Grid Star Too



Jeanne Powell.

Not a football player, but Jeanne Powell, freshman at Bowling Green, O., state university, is one of the stars of the gridiron. She's a drum majorette for the school band and attracts plenty of attention.

ELI LOSES FIVE GAMES BUT COACH KEEPS JOB

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(INS)— Yale has lost five of its six football games, but Coach Emerson (Spike) Nelson will not lose his job on account of the hapless performance.

Speaking before the Connecticut Sportwriters Alliance, Ogden D. Miller, the Eli athletic director, said, "regardless of the outcome of our last two games, the head coachship will remain in Mr. Nelson's hands."

Safety Cabs Boost Margin

Commercial "C" Leaders Pick Up Full Game.

Safety Cabs increased their Commercial "C" league first place margin to two full games last night with a 3-0 victory, while the second place Weber Beers were scoring a 2-1 win.

Burger of Weber Beers turned in high total of 573, including a 214 game, but P. White of Goebel Beers had high game of 218.

Madison Starts Basketball Work

Starting their first season as a Class A basketball team, the Madison Rams began practice last night for their first tilt with Lexington, Nov. 28.

With five lettermen returning Coach Al Fendrick said today that the reserve strength appeared so strong that it's not at all certain that the lettermen will play first string.

Returning are Harold Hammer and Max Roberts, forwards; Delbert Poston, center; Willy Wynn and Ken Windsor, guards.

Strongest reserve candidate for a first string berth appears to be Bob Anthony at center, Fendrick said.

Other reserves are Dick Dader, forward; Dick Bishop and Joe Harfman, guards; and Dick Gross, forward.

High School Gridder Has 100-Yard Jaunt

Piqua Boy Intercepts Pass On Goal Line, Runs For Touchdown

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—It was a long time coming, but an Ohio high school gridder finally came up last week-end with a 100-yard touchdown run, the longest jaunt of the scholastic campaign.

Jim McMaken, Piqua Central's fullback, authored the "century" run as he snagged a Dayton Fairmont pass on his own goal line and romped to the other, breaking a 6-6 tie late in the third session. Piqua went on to win 24 to 12, for its sixth victory in eight starts.

While McMaken was hitting the hall of fame, 10 teams were racking up their eighth straight conquest to tie Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home, which ended its unbeaten-untied-unscored on season early last week.

* * *

With eight victories, and the scores of the week-end tilts, were: Portsmouth East (6, Portsmouth Central Catholic 0), Chauncey Dover (14, Middleport 0), Canton Lehman (37, Akron Garfield 0), Cleveland Collinwood (33, Cleveland East 0), Cleveland Lincoln (7, Cleveland John Marshall 0), Mifflin (63, Ohio School for Deaf 0), Logan (33, Wellston 0), Leetonia (20, Austintown Fitch 0), Wyoming (13, North College Hill 0), and Martins Ferry (54, Steubenville 6).

* * *

Bexley, which hadn't been beaten in 16 contests, finally fell by 13-7 before Washington Court House. Upper Sandusky's great team had a chance to get into the "eight victory" class today as it met Carey in an Armistice day scrap.

With Upper Sandusky idle, the individual scoring race failed to change, Captain Russell (Flying Express) Wolfe of that team holding his one-point edge with 138 over Portsmouth East's 140-pound Don Reinhardt, who was blanked for the first time this season as his team beat Portsmouth Central Catholic 6-0.

Among the powerhouse elevens, Canton McKinley played a scoreless tie with Mansfield's Tygers, who two weeks ago played a 6-6 deadlock with mighty Massillon. The latter team smothered Toledo Waite 39-7, for its seventh victory against one tie. McKinley lost Jack Crider, star halfback, in the Mansfield game, and a leg injury will keep him out of the big Nov. 22 struggle with Massillon.

* * *

Canton Lehman, coached by Jimmy Robinson, prexy of the Ohio High School Coaches association, romped to its eighth straight over Akron Garfield, 37 to 0, as Jack Lothamer completed nine of 10 passes for 120 yards, and Bud Gray, fullback, gained 212 yards in 21 ball-carrying attempts.

Bucks Work To Build Defense

Prepare To Meet Zup's Complete Bag of Tricks.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Buckeyes went to work in earnest today patching up their sieve-like defenses that permitted five Wisconsin touchdowns to sift through last Saturday.

Coach Paul E. Brown of the Bucks expects another offensive threat from Illinois in this week's Western Conference contest—the last home appearance of the season for Ohio State and the feature of the annual homecoming celebration.

Scouting reports show that Bob Zuppke's Illini function from the "T," modified "T," single wing and spread formations and can be counted on to "shoot the works" in an effort to grab their first Big Ten victory.

* * *

Brown announced that Lin Houston, regular guard injured in the Pittsburgh game 10 days ago, would not be ready for action by Saturday, but said the rest of the squad was fit.

Big Jim Daniell, veteran tackle, received a nose fracture in the Wisconsin contest but likely will be in shape for the kickoff.

The Bucks opened their week of preparation with a light workout and a look at the motion pictures of the 46-34 victory over Wisconsin.

After seeing the movies, Brown agreed with sport writers that the Badgers scored their second touchdown on a "fifth down" but said the incident was a thing of the past and forgotten already.

EXPERIENCES OF REFUGEES TOLD IN NEW VOLUME

'I Go By Sea, I Go By Land,' Deals With Two Children Brought To Canada.

Experiences of two English children sent by their parents to Canada to find safety from air raids are set forth in the form of a 10-year-old's diary in P. L. Travers' new book, "I Go By Sea, I Go By Land," just received by the Mansfield Public Library.

Written by both adults and children the story is told with the delightful humor and imagination that distinguished the author's earlier books, "Mary Poppins" and "Mary Poppins Comes Back."

Other new books on the library shelves include:

Jenny Hagar, the STRANGE WOMAN of Ben Ames Williams latest novel, is one of the most alive and amazing characters in recent fiction. She was wicked—but with a wickedness almost outweighed by the virtues of her strength, courage, frankness and above all, by great beauty—which brought exhilaration and love, as well as unhappiness and hatred into the lives of seven men. The background is Bangor and the timber rush—from the War of 1812 until after the Civil war.

THE TIMELESS LAND by Eleanor Dark is a richly colorful story of the first five years of English settlement in Australia, and of the black people whose life and culture and natural gaiety were so cruelly destroyed in that short time. That the few boatloads of convicts who made up the original colony survived at all was due to the courage and wisdom of their Captain whose story along with that of a fictional character, Andrew Prentice, is told here.

Other fiction: A HOUSE FOR EMILY by Reeves; HANKOW RETURNS by Archer; SHE'LL BE DEAD BY MORNING by Leffingwell.

MURDER OUT YONDER by Stewart H. Holbrook is an outgrowth of a pet theory of the author's. He has long felt that when back-country folk set out to murder, they use more imagination and a finer sense of drama than most city slickers. As a result he travelled some 11,000 miles and consulted all available records, in order to reconstruct these ten crimes, and his telling shows the same keen research that distinguishes his "Holy Old Mackinaw."

AMERICA'S LAST KING by Manfred S. Guttmacher, M. D. is an interpretation of the madness of George III. Following his subject through sickness and health, as a link in his family chain and a pawn in the play of history—Dr. Guttmacher has produced a biography that presents a revealing and full-sized portrait and a new and arresting treatment of a misunderstood figure.

THIS BUSINESS OF CARVING by Bill Rhode is a book on the art of carving meat, poultry, and fish properly—that is tastily, economically, and with the least effort. It is a mine of information for the carver, on how to serve any and all kinds of meat in the most appetizing and appealing manner. The illustrations, all drawn from actual models, were especially prepared for this book.

OTHER NON-FICTION: SO TO SPEAK by von Hesse; PLANTS IN THE HOME by Balthis; BIBLE PLANTS FOR AMERICAN GARDENS by King; CRAFT OF MODELING RAILWAYS by Beal; ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR., by Sloan; PERSONALITY DEVELOPMENT, 5 vols. by Hunter; DOCTORS DON'T BELIEVE IT, WHY SHOULD YOU? by Thomen; BOOK OF CHARLES FORT by Fort; GUN COLLECTING by Chapel; AERONAUTIC RADIO by Eddy.

Says U. S. Needs Good Textbook on South America

COLUMBIA, Mo.—What this country needs is a good text-book on South America.

That's the judgment of a leading women's college president, Dr. James Madison Wood of Stephens College, Columbia, who pointed out "there is not a single authoritative and readable book on Latin America in our school rooms."

A recent survey, he reported, showed that teaching of European history overshadowed that of South American by 15 to 1 in 65,000 courses being given in schools all over the United States.

At a time when hemisphere solidarity is of major importance, he said, American school children are poring over accounts of medieval battles and European geography. Bolivar and San Martin, two of the principal liberators of South America from the Spanish yoke, are "strangers" to pupils in this country. The facts of climate, topography, habits and customs of the lands below the border, are equally unfamiliar, he claims.

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little. Try a bottle, it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Weinberger's, Leed's and drug stores everywhere.

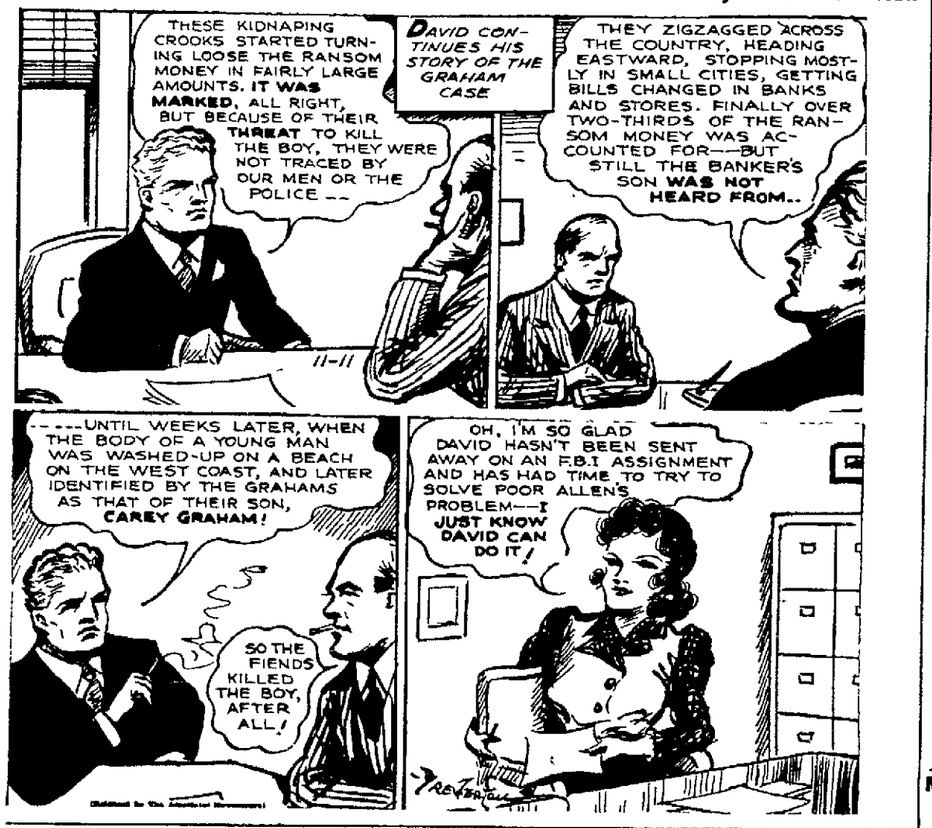
PAM—A Tragic Story. By A. W. Brewerton



THESE KIDNAPING CROOKS STARTED TURNING LOOSE THE RANSOM MONEY IN FAIRLY LARGE AMOUNTS. IT WAS MARKED, ALL RIGHT, BUT BECAUSE OF THEIR THREAT TO KILL THE BOY, THEY WERE NOT TRACED BY OUR MEN OR THE POLICE --
DAVID CONTINUES HIS STORY OF THE GRAHAM CASE
THEY ZIGZAGGED ACROSS THE COUNTRY, HEADING EASTWARD, STOPPING MOSTLY IN SMALL CITIES, GETTING BILLS CHANGED IN BANKS AND STORES. FINALLY OVER TWO-THIRDS OF THE RANSOM MONEY WAS ACCOUNTED FOR--BUT STILL THE BANKER'S SON WAS NOT HEARD FROM..
11-11
----UNTIL WEEKS LATER, WHEN THE BODY OF A YOUNG MAN WAS WASHED-UP ON A BEACH ON THE WEST COAST, AND LATER IDENTIFIED BY THE GRAHAMS AS THAT OF THEIR SON, CAREY GRAHAM!
SO THE FIENDS KILLED THE BOY, AFTER ALL!
OH, I'M SO GLAD DAVID HASN'T BEEN SENT AWAY ON AN F.B.I ASSIGNMENT AND HAS HAD TIME TO TRY TO SOLVE POOR ALLEN'S PROBLEM---I JUST KNOW DAVID CAN DO IT!

FDR CALLS ON U. S. TO BRING WORLD FREEDOM

President, In Armistice Day Talk, Says Peace Task For All In Nation.

'that these dead shall not have died in vain'."

He quoted Sgt. Alvin York, hero of the first World war, who spoke thus of cynics and doubters of the real purposes behind the sacrifices in 1917 and 1918:

"The thing they forget is that liberty and freedom and democracy are so very precious that you do not fight to win them once and stop. Liberty and freedom and democracy are prizes awarded only to those people who fight to win them and then keep fighting eternally to hold them."

Then the president added his own comment to the statement of Sergeant York:

"The people of America agree with that. They believe that liberty is worth fighting for. And if they are obliged to fight they will fight eternally to hold it."

Speaking on the side of a wind swept hill dotted by thousands of graves of World war dead, Mr. Roosevelt said: "We know that these men died to save their country from a terrible danger of that day."

"We know, because we face that danger once again on this day."

He recalled that Sergeant York, speaking at the unknown soldier's tomb several years ago, told how there were people in the country today who ask the veterans of World war No. 1 "what did it get you?"

"People who ask that question of Sergeant York and his comrades forgot one essential fact which every man who looks can see today," the president said.

The president spoke after his military aides placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. The day was clear and crisp and some of the audience had been on the hillside two hours before the ceremonies.

Another Day of Work for Europe

(By Associated Press)

Armistice day was just another day of work today for Britain and most of German-dominated Europe, where once the powers victorious in the World war observed the occasion with great pomp and solemnity.

It was business as usual, too, for part of official Washington. The Office of Production Management, directing center of the vast effort to fill the supply chests of Britain and Russia with American war materials, asked its staff to appear voluntarily at their desks.

President Roosevelt led the nation in observing the day. He broadcast a short message from the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington cemetery.

The British, anxious not to lose a single day in the production of vital war material, observed the 23rd anniversary of the armistice in unobstrusive fashion Sunday.

The anonymous "Colonel Britton," leader of the British "V" campaign, broadcast from London last night, however, an appeal to the peoples of German-occupied countries to make the anniversary "Dead March Day" and thus slow down Nazi war industries.

The Germans themselves, who regard November 11 as the "day of degradation," forbade under pain of punishment any demonstrations in areas under their control.

Memorial services for the dead of all wars were arranged in Vichy, seat of the government in unoccupied France.

Italy celebrated on November 4 the anniversary of the end of fighting against Austria-Hungary in 1918.

Neither Russia nor Japan ever has celebrated Armistice Day. Russia was out of the World war before the Armistice and Japan always has ignored the date because she had little part in the war after the first few weeks.

Ohio Armistice Day Has Defense Theme

(By Associated Press)

Ohioans observed the 23rd anniversary of the World war armistice today by concentrating on the defense of the United States anew.

Gilbert Bettman, Ohio supreme court judge and former state American Legion commander, asserted in an address prepared for Armistice day exercises at Springfield that the present war "is the age-old contest between good and evil; and right in the end must triumph."

Gov. John W. Bricker, in a speech launching Defense week in Ohio, asked "all persons throughout the state to give thought to their duties and responsibilities in the defense of this country.

"Regardless of what lies before us—whether it be peace or war—civilian defense will serve a useful purpose," the governor said.

Double Feature Movie Too Long For Youngster

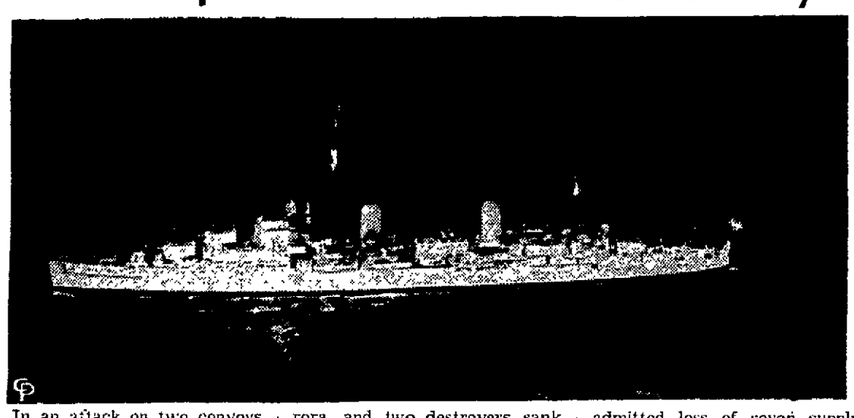
CLEVELAND — (AP) — Her face tear-stained and grimy, nine-year-old Caroline Biasi was released today from a theater where she had spent 10 hours in darkness.

The girl left her Kinsman avenue home at 7:30 last night to see a double feature show. Her mother, Mrs. Louise Biasi, believed the child to be in the company of an aunt.

A man passing the neighborhood theater this morning heard a rapping on the glass door, and summoned police.

"I fell asleep," Caroline sobbed. "I woke up sometime this morning when I got cold. I was sitting way down front and I guess nobody noticed me."

British Squadron Smashes Italian Convoys



In an attack on two convoys south of Taranto, Italy, a squadron of two British 5,000-ton cruisers, including H. M. S. Aurora, and two destroyers sank 10 Axis supply ships and one Italian destroyer and damaged two other destroyers, according to the admiralty. The Italians admitted loss of seven supply vessels and two destroyers, but said Fascist torpedo planes hit a British cruiser and a destroyer.

LEWIS DEBATES HIS NEXT STEP

Mine Chief Gets Warning From President To Back Up Decision of Board.

industry must produce enough steel for American protection and to "serve the requirements of Great Britain, Canada, Russia, China and all other forces determined to defeat the Axis powers."

It also must maintain, the president said, "the industries absolutely essential to the functioning of our civilian life, as well as that of Latin America and every other civilized country in the world depending upon that commodity."

"The output of the steel mills serves as the backbone of the weapons, the tanks, the airplanes and the ships on which the fate of free government in this world rests," he said.

Without directly mentioning the coal dispute, he then declared:

"We must set aside any individualistic interest which interferes in the slightest degree with this objective. The executives must, and I know they will, work with labor to meet this test of their resources, and I am equally as positive that labor will work with the executives, for that purpose is mutual—the protection of the lives and the homes of the American people and of every free home on earth."

The mediation board's decision was a momentary setback for Lewis' United Mine Workers union. The bushy-browed CIO leader called one strike in September and a second in October to enforce his demands for the union shop, but called off the latter walkout at the fourth request of President Roosevelt pending mediation board consideration.

Even before the board began final hearings in the dispute, Lewis set next Saturday as the deadline for granting of his union shop demand. In advance, also, he won an agreement which had White House approval that whatever recommendations the board made would not be binding.

Lewis said he had no comment on the board action at the moment.

William H. Davis, chairman of the mediation board was asked what he would do if Lewis refused to accept the recommendations and called another strike.

"We will cross that bridge when we come to it," he said.

WEIGHS APPEAL FOR NEW TAXES

House Committee To Defer Action on President's Proposal.

continuing effectiveness of price control is largely dependent upon the restriction of the demand for goods."

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the view that inflation in itself was "a most inequitable form of taxation" and said he very much feared "that unless we start within two or three months to withdraw through taxes a larger part of the current national income, an even greater part may evaporate through inflation, and the upward spiral may gain such momentum that it will be difficult to regulate, despite all efforts through price control and similar measures."

Doughton, in his reply, agreed that "the dangers of inflation must be of immediate concern to all of us," but he added that the price control bill would require "the full time and effort of the entire (house) membership" for the moment.

Speaking of shelving of the treasury program, Doughton wrote that the committee last week "temporarily deferred" action on it—and he underlined the words "temporarily deferred."
